GARDEN, FARM, BEES, ETC.

VARIOUS ANNUALS—

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times the Garden Correspondent says: For present sowing include the following, which we should miss if absent from our summer gaiety: Blue Cornflower, Centaurea cyanus, is, of course, indispensable, as are those graceful, glorified forms of Papaverrbeas, the field Poppy, under conversion at Shirley Vicarage, becoming Shirley Poppies. Linum grandiflorum rubrum, the scarlet Flax, in its dazzling hue, defies being overlooked, and who would be without Love-in-a-mist, Nigella, in spite of being also known as Devil-in-a-bush? Malope grandiflora is a robust annual, lavish with its showy crimson flowers, and if that wee thing, Virginian Stock, Malcomia maritima, is not too insignificant to mention, we plead for its inclusion and decent treatment by thin sowing and timely thinning.

FEEDING BROODIES.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says: Hens sitting on eggs should be fed once daily. The usual time is every morning, though it does not matter at what time, so long as it is the same time each day. Some hens get restless if not fed at the usual time. We have found it better to feed pullets, or any hens that seem uncertain, in the evening, as they are more inclined to go back quietly to the nests at that time. The food usually given is crusted maize, and we have always supplied mixed grain, so that they can eat what they like best. Soft food is not suitable, as it may cause looseness of the bowels; but, if they do not seem to eat the grain, well-boiled rice may be given for a few days. It is better to give them what they like, as it is important that they should eat well.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

LONDON STOCK MARKET FEATURES.

THE INVESTMENT MARKET.

POSITION IN PRIMARY PRODUCING COUNTRIES.

FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON, Sunday.

All the indications point to a continuance of the upward movement in investment securities, which has been the outstanding feature of Stock markets this year. This favourable tendency has been accentuated by the realisation of a Budget surplus and the prospect of a moderate reduction in the income tax. It would seem that with the return of confidence, due to the favourable progress of events in this country, there is now more money seeking sound investments. Unfortunately, the available supply diminishes almost daily, and one of the troubles of brokers is to execute their clients' orders. The movement in market valuations since the early part of the year has compelled investors to modify their views in regard to interest yields. British Government securities are now almost on a 4 per cent. basis, and English Corporation Stocks can with difficulty be bought to return more than 4¼ per cent. The best Industrial Preference and Debenture issues give from 4½ to 4¾ per cent., and a yield of 5 per cent. on safe stocks is now a thing of the past.

THE FOREIGN FACTOR.

It is probable that the demand for "safety first" securities has been encouraged by the rather dubious outlook in various other countries. The Kreuger and Toll affair had a very unsettling influence abroad. Various Central European States apparently are in dire need of fresh financial assistance, and recent developments in America have certainly not been encouraging. That country may meet its huge Budget deficit, as we have succeeded in doing, but the prospect is that business conditions there will continue to be unsatisfactory for a considerable time to come. While, therefore, there is no inducement for English investors to acquire dollar securities, the Americans themselves will probably be prevented from buying in our market. Looking farther afield, one of the most satisfactory developments in the last six months or so is the improvement in general conditions in India. Thanks to a firm administration, there is now little uneasiness regarding the political situation, while the gold exports from the country, which now aggregate over £44,000,000 since September last, have greatly assisted the financial operations of the Government. Indian securities of all kinds have enjoyed a considerable recovery since the year turned, as indicated by the commencement of business in the new Port of Calcutta 5½ per cent. Stock at about 97.

PRIMARY PRODUCING COUNTRIES.

Australia is gradually emerging from its difficulties, and will make more marked progress when commodity prices advance. In South America Argentina appears to be making a determined effort to improve economic conditions, while Brazil has just announced that it will repay the whole of the outstanding 7½ per cent. Coffee Loan of 1922 in October next. This announcement has not greatly affected the market for Brazilian Government Loans generally, but it should lead to higher prices for certain issues—in particular, perhaps, the 6½ per cent. 1927 and the 5 per cent. 1903, which have special claims upon the attention of the speculative investor. Unfortunately, it is impossible to take an equally hopeful view regarding Chilian Loans, holders of which are showing some impatience with the absence of any scheme for funding the interest on bonds now in default. Owing to the unsatisfactory state of the nitrate industry and the fall in metal prices, particularly copper, it is probable that Chile finds difficulty in formulating any scheme of arrangement.

INVESTMENT TRUSTS.

A section of the Stock markets which has not shown an undue appreciation in prices is represented by investment trusts. These must be divided into two categories—the old-established undertakings and the post-war companies. The latter entered the field when prices were high, and probably a large proportion of their funds is invested in European and some other foreign stocks that have depreciated very seriously in recent years. The result is that the securities held are not worth their book value, while the companies have not been established long enough to allow of the building up of reserves to offset the depreciation. On the other hand, most of the old companies have strong reserves, and in several cases these funds, with the cash in hand, fully cover the depreciation in securities at the end of last year. Moreover, to the extent that the holdings represent investment stocks a great deal of the fall has since been made good.

HOW PRICES HAVE MOVED.

Whether investors would be justified in acquiring Ordinary or Deferred Stocks of these well-established companies may be determined from the following comparison of prices of half a dozen representative issues:—

Ord. or Deferred Stocks.	Highest in 1931.	Lowest in 1932.	Recent buying prices.
Alliance Investment.	195	135	145
British Steamship ...	167	96	107
Consolidated	372	258	260
Government Stocks and Other	177¼	85	93
Mercantile Invest. and General	318	200	213xd.
Traction & General..	318½	220	225

It will be seen that, while there has been a fair recovery from the lowest points of this year, current quotations are considerably below the highest of 1931, the difference in two cases amounting to fully 100 points. In certain instances, dividends had to be reduced last year, but, even allowing for this, there would appear to be considerable scope for a further improvement in the above stocks and in similar issues in this section.

CURRENT YIELDS.

The yields at current prices based on the last annual dividends range from 6½ per cent. on Mercantile Invest. and General to 7 11/16 per cent. on Consolidated Stock. Having regard to the returns now obtainable from Banking and Insurance issues, and even the best Industrial Ordinary shares, these figures must be considered satisfactory. A purchase of the above stocks, therefore, would give a very good annual income, while almost certainly it would afford some capital appreciation. A point in favour of the above class of investment is that the greater activity now being witnessed in the financial world, especially in the direction of new capital issues, should enable the investment trusts to show better profits than those for last year.

THE OUTLOOK.

Now that the financial year has turned, the Money market will be looking for an early reduction in the Bank rate to 3 per cent., and if the present tendency of foreign funds to flow to this market should continue the movement may not stop at that figure. In regard to the much-discussed conversion of 5 per cent. War Loan, some people consider that the Government should not be content to offer holders an exchange into a 4 per cent. stock at par, but that the figure might be 3½ per cent. only. This view may be realised, especially if we have a lower Bank rate than 3 per cent. There is at least the possibility, therefore, that considerably higher prices of gilt-edged stocks will be reached in the future, and such a development would mean better prices also for well-secured Debenture and Preference issues. The more the outlook is studied the stronger is the conviction that for some time to come Stock Exchange business will largely centre in the investment markets.

TONE AND COMMENT

DUBLIN IDLE.

PRICES STEADY.

The close of the long account proved a very idle day on Dublin Stock Exchange, and price movements were small and unimportant. The Funds and Land Bonds were steady, the principal change being a fall of ½ in the Bonds. Bank Stock was slightly lower, and National Bank improved.

Among Rails, G.S. Pref. recovered to 18¼. Guinness units were supported up to 80s., and closed at 79s. 9d., a rise of threepence. No business was marked in Industrials, except lower prices for Imperial Chemical Def. Millar and Beatty Pref. rose 2s. to 60s.

LONDON UNINTERESTING.

GILT-EDGED LOWER.

The Stock Markets had a dull appearance on Saturday, there being few features of interest. Further selling was encountered both on home and Continental account, and the fact that it was the last day of a long account did not assist the tone. Gilt-edged stocks generally were lower, mainly on foreign realisations, but apart from Funding Loan, which fell ⅝, losses did not exceed ½. The reaction in sterling also affected this market, and the pending New Zealand Loan was not without influence. Among Foreign Government Stocks, Chinese issues weakened, but French and German descriptions hardened. Home Rails met with no support, and declines of ½ to ¾ were frequent, while Southern 5 per cent. Preferred Ord. were marked down to the extent of 1½. There was not much business among Colonial and Foreign Rails, where Central Argentine Deferred fell 2 to 20. American Rails were stagnant. Mines, Oils and Rubbers had few features of interest, while among Industrials Ford Motors had a moderate rally.

THE MONEY MARKET

BILL RATES FIRM.

RISE IN GOLD AND SILVER.

There was a fair demand for loans for a Saturday, borrowers usually having to pay 1½ to 2 per cent. for advances over the week-end. Towards the close some business was reported at 1½ per cent. The general charge for renewing old money was 1½ to 2 per cent.

Bank Rate Discount (changed March 17), 3½%
60 days (fine)	2⅛	2¼%
3 months	2⅛	2 5/16%	Trade	3½	4 %
4 "	2⅛	2 5/16%	"	3¾	4 %

for a week				2½	2 %
Deposit Allowance; Banks at Call					1½%
" " Discount Houses at Call					1½%
" " " " at Notice					1¾%

Bill rates maintained a firm tendency on Friday's Treasury bill results. Most houses quoted 2¼ as the minimum for fine three months' bank bills, and the "hot" Treasuries were rather offered at 2 1/16 per cent. Business for this week was reported at 2⅛ per cent. The banks were buyers of May Treasuries at 1 15/16 to 2 per cent.

Silver was 1/16d. better at 17½d. per ounce for spot, and 17 9/16d. for forward delivery. Gold rose 7d. to 108s. 11d. per ounce fine.

Sterling displayed a generally weaker tendency in the Foreign Exchange Market, a partial rally during early dealings not being maintained. American dollars opened around 3.78, and after reacting to 3.79½ further improved to 3.76, a rise of 3¼ cents compared with Friday's closing rate. Similar movements occurred among leading Continental exchanges. Outstanding in the Far Eastern section was an advance of 1/16d. to 1s. 9 1/16d. in the value of Japanese yen.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET.

MODERATE RALLY IN FORD MOTORS.

Adverse advices from Wall street and the Continental centres continued to exert their influence on all sections of the Industrial market on Saturday. It was the last day of an unpopular three weeks' account, and, apart from the evening up of books, there was little in the nature of fresh business passing.

With Wall street in doubtful mood, the trans-Atlantic counters presented a heavy appearance. Brazilian Tractions improved from 12½ to 13, eventually closing at 12⅞.

Cables and Wireless Stocks had a steadier appearance at the opening, but lost ground later.

A little end of account bear closing was responsible for a moderate rally in the price of Ford Motors to 23s. 6d.

Tate and Lyles were marked down sharply to 41s. 6d on a little provincial selling, the fall being attributed to uneasiness regarding the sugar position. Bovril Def. gained 1/16 to 1 15/32, but J. Lyons Ord. declined that much to 4 25/32, while the Unilever twins lost 1/16 to 1 5/16. United Dairies gave way 3d. to 38s. 6d.

Further scattered selling from the provinces affected Textiles. Declines of 9d. occurred in J. and P. Coats to 40s. 6d., and in Fine Spinners to 15s. 9d., while Bradford Dyers dwindled to 19s.

There was hardly sufficient business passing among Rayons to test quotations. Courtaulds and British Celanese remained around the previous levels.

Although there was not much doing among Breweries, values had a fairly steady appearance on taxation remission hopes. The only dull spots were Distillers at 46s. 6d. and Guinness at 79s. 3d.

Tobaccos were inclined to sag from lack of interest.

Banks remained dull.

Of the Swedish issues, Kreuger "B" again finished with a slight improvement at 8s., while the Participating Debs. closed with little variation in the neighbourhood of 17s. Swedish Match "B", however, remained completely without support, and lost 1/16 to 1 1/16. Imperial Chemical Ord. at 16s. 1½d. left off the turn harder. Small improvements took place in British Aluminium at 25s. 9d. and Spillers Def. at 23s. 1½d. Lever Debs. drooped further to 2¾ prem.

OIL SHARES LOWER.

At the opening the Oil Market had a slightly harder appearance, with higher prices quoted for one or two of the leading counters. Preliminaries in connection with the carry-over were in progress, and revealed only a small open position, which was almost entirely confined to leading counters. There was a small backwardation on Royal Dutch. Shell (Registered) changed hands at a low rate, but the charge on the Bearer Shares was rather higher. Shells and Royal Dutch were "takers-in," but there was not much in the position either way among other leading shares. Royal Dutch, which improved at the start to 14¼, receded later, and were finally ⅛ down at 13⅞. Shells opened rather buyers at the overnight's level of 1 29/32, but a loss of 1/16 was finally recorded at 1⅞. Canadian and Mexican Eagles weakened to 6s. 1½d. and 6s. 4½d. respectively.

RUBBERS NEGLECTED.

With the price of the commodity quiet at 1⅞d. per lb., Rubber shares were neglected, the only movement being in Sungei Kapar, which receded to the extent of 3d.

DIVIDENDS AND REPORTS.

ASSOCIATED DYERS AND CLEANERS.—Profit for 1931 was £36,320 (against £55,856). Preference dividend for year takes £24,239 and balance £32,511 (against £20,430) is carried forward). (For previous year 6 per cent. was paid on Ordinary, £3,001 added to reserve, making it £140,000, and £5,000 to contingencies account.) Preference dividend for half-year to April 30 will be paid on that date.

BIRMINGHAM SMALL ARMS CO.—The directors have deferred payment of the interim Pref. dividends.

BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON.—Profits for 1931 of the British Thomson-Houston Co., electrical engineers, amounted to £450,047, compared with £462,446. With the larger sum brought in and reduced outgoings for Debenture and loan interest, the net balance, after £150,208 (against £160,988) for depreciation, was £23,894 higher at £398,466. It is proposed to place £20,000 to reserve, to which nothing was added in the previous year. Ordinary dividend is maintained at 5 per cent., leaving, after Preference dividends, amounting to £82,200, a balance of £221,265 (against £215,698) to carry forward. The report states that the volume of factory output and the amount of new business received were both less than in the previous year. Severe competition continued to keep prices at unreasonably low levels.

BRITISH DRUG HOUSES.—Trading profits for 1931 were £36,381 (against £58,086) and net, after depreciation, taxation, etc., £17,049 (£40,002). Preference dividend takes £12,100, to special reserve for contingencies £3,000 (against £10,000 to general reserve), forward £10,273 (against £8,330 after 5 per cent. on Ordinary last year).

HIGHLAND TEA OF CEYLON.—Net profit for 1931 was £12,930 (against £13,974); dividend 15 per cent. (against 20 per cent.), written off estates, £1,749 (£2,023), to reserve £1,000 (nil), making it £12,000, to tax reserve £1,000 (nil), forward £2,745 (£2,263).

JOHN MOWLEM AND CO.—Ord. dividend and bonus of 12½ per cent. (Same.)

J. AND R. ALLAN.—Net profit for year to February 19 was £20,173 (against £23,309); Ordinary dividend 15 per cent. (same), forward £15,715 (against £14,041).

ORIENTAL GAS.—Interim dividend of 3½ per cent., less tax. (Same.)

PORTMORE TEA OF CEYLON.—Profit for 1931 £8,804 (against £14,295); dividend 15 per cent. (30 per cent.), written off new factory £4,669 (nil), forward £3,204 (£5,069).

PUNDALOYA TEA OF CEYLON.—Final dividend of 17 per cent. on Ordinary, making 25 per cent. for year (unchanged).

RECKITT AND SONS.—Final dividend of 6¼ per cent., together with a bonus of 1¼ per cent., on the Ord. shares, making a total of 22½ per cent. for the year. (The same as in 1930.)

UNITED DRAPERY STORES.—The net profit of United Drapery Stores, Ltd., in the year to February 29 last amounted to £45,470, against £75,147 in 1930-31. A dividend of 2½ per cent., which compares with 5 per cent. in the previous year, is proposed, leaving £1,301 to be carried forward. Referring to the loan to the M.I.G. Trust, Ltd. (in liquidation), it is stated that realisations were effected and dividends received during the year to the extent of £21,336. The securities still held comprise holdings in thirty different companies, and a large number, while immediately realisable, are being held in anticipation that better prices will be obtained when financial conditions improve. In the meantime the Board has decided to set aside a further £27,000 to contingency reserve account, and on this basis the directors are of opinion that the loss is fully provided. The loan appears in the balance sheet at £58,489, against £124,517 a year ago. The aggregate turn-over of the subsidiary companies was £1,202,769, compared with £1,274,392 in the previous year, and the net profit was £96,653—a decrease of £13,446. The subsidiary companies' accumulated profits and reserves carried forward total £147,143.

UNITED MOLASSES.—The working in 1931 resulted in a total deficit of £711,413, which increases the debit at profit and loss to £775,673. This figure includes capital losses incurred during the year of £110,601, mainly arising out of the sale of the 50 per cent. interest in the Eastern Alcohol Corporation. Comparison of the 1931 figures with those of the previous year is difficult owing to the liquidation of the Pure Cane Molasses Co., Ltd., and the British Molasses Co., Ltd., through which companies trading was formerly conducted. Trading operations of these companies were taken over by the parent company on May 1. The present accounts show a trading profit of £311,470, whereas no such item appeared last year. Dividends and interest received rose from £67,249 to £70,041, but as was to be expected there was a sharp fall in revenue from charter hire, which amounted to only £49,170, against £386,898. The available total, deducting the debit brought in, is £366,421, against £1,348,828. Cost of molasses which had to be run to waste was £433,393. Depreciation absorbed £190,787 and subsidiaries losses £217,887, with the result that after charging office expenses, interest and taxation, profit and loss deficit is £600,812, increased, as stated above, by capital losses to £775,673. In the previous year there was a deficit, after meeting the Preference dividend, of £913,434, from which was deducted capital and general reserves of £849,174. Subsidiaries losses then absorbed £1,039,022. During the last quarter of the year the decline in the consumption of molasses in Great Britain and some of the Continental markets came to an end. Since then there has been a steady and continuous improvement in those markets, and the deliveries during January and February of this year exceeded last year's deliveries by about 50 per cent. The directors have not dealt with the depreciation in the valuation of investments, nor have they attempted to deal with the depreciated value of the investments in subsidiaries. They feel it would be premature at the present moment to attempt such a revaluation.

VAUXHALL MOTORS.—A big improvement is shown in the report for 1931 of Vauxhall Motors, Ltd., the 450,000 £1 Ordinary Shares and 276,202 of the 300,000 £1 Preference Shares of which are held by the General Motors Corporation of New York. Against a trading profit of £117,037 in 1930 there is a trading profit of £310,460, and the net profit of £56,040 compares with a net loss of £88,536. The deficit brought in is reduced to £392,345. While the directors are not justified in paying any arrears of Preference dividends (the dividend is paid to October 1, 1928), the results, states the report, "clearly indicate that the company is once again on a profit-earning basis."

W. H. BRAKSPEAR AND SONS.—Final dividend 7 per cent., making 12½ per cent. (Same.)

LONDON MINING MARKET QUIET.

PRICES GENERALLY EASIER.

The quiet conditions which ruled in the Mining Market during the earlier part of the week had prepared members for an idle session on Saturday. The result was that many anticipated the holidays arranged on the latter Saturdays of the month, the attendance being smaller than usual. Very few movements occurred in the Kaffir section, despite the fact that the March returns so far issued make a favourable showing. Nothing of interest transpired among the Rhodesians. Tintos were quiet, the final quotation leaving them a fraction lower. The tendency among tins was slightly better, but it was not reflected to any noticeable extent in quotations. The price of gold recovered 7d. to 108s. 11d. per ounce, and Ashantis benefited to a small extent. Westralians, however, were quieter. A small turnover was recorded in Wilunas, and by the close they had regained the slight loss shown at one time. Closing prices:—

LONDON "STREET" MARKET.

There was a larger attendance in the street on Saturday than for some weeks past, but the turnover was small. Nickels found supporters and improved to 9½, but Brazilian Traction finished easier at 12⅞, while Hydros were on offer and lost ⅜ to 9. Canadas declined ¾ to 17½.

CANADIAN RAILWAYS DEBENTURE ISSUE.

An Ottawa telegram of Saturday says:—A bill authorising the issue of Canadian National Railway Co. Debentures, totalling 61,500,000 dollars (£12,300,000 at par)—the amount necessary to meet deficits on the National Railway system for the past fiscal year and to provide for Debenture obligations maturing in the coming year—was introduced by the Government in the Canadian House of Commons to-day. The Canadian nationally-owned system, said Mr. R. J. Manion, the Minister of Railways, had had to be financed by the Federal Government during the past year to the extent of nearly 10,000,000 dollars monthly, covering all charges. The total bond indebtedness to the public was 1,288,000,000 dollars, on which the annual interest was about 57,000,000 dollars, or over 1,000,000 dollars weekly. These bonds, the Minister pointed out, were guaranteed by the Government of Canada, and the necessary provision must be made to meet all interest payments. The new bill provided for a net income deficit on the Canadian National Railway of 43,000,000 dollars in the past fiscal year, covering mainly interest on bonds held by the public and also 11,000,000 dollars for new equipment under capital expenditure and 7,000,000 dollars for "constructions and betterments."

The second largest blast furnace in the U.S.S.R. has now started work. It belongs to the Kuznetzk Metallurgical Combine, and is exceeded only by the furnace at Magnitogorsk.

NEW ISSUE PREMIUMS.

Extravagant premiums are still being paid for the scrips of recent new issues of which the public failed to secure allotments. This is because of the dearth of suitable investments into which those holders of gilt-edged securities who have taken profits on the rise can employ their capital. Unless we assume that the War Loan conversion scheme will be produced in the near future—and we (Sunday Times) can find no confirmation of this view—it seems to us that War Loan 5 per cent. stock provides an ideal home for temporary investment of such balances. While waiting for his stock to be paid off, with the option of taking 4 per cent. long-dated stock in its place, the holder can watch the prospectuses of new issues. It will be surprising if sooner or later he does not find something to suit his purpose without paying an extravagant premium. At present it is very difficult to obtain allotments, but eventually the supply of new issues will catch up with the demand, and the investor can then pick and choose. This is what has always happened in the past, and it will happen again.

CAUGHT BY SLUMP IN COMMODITIES.

A group of Continental speculators appears to be badly caught in the commodity price slump. Having built up considerable "bull" positions in commodities in London a few weeks ago, it is now cutting its losses (says The Evening Standard). In well-informed quarters it is believed that this forced liquidation is not completed yet. The bulk of this misguided speculation seems to have been concentrated on the tin market. Tin was the commodity which the inflation school of prophets tipped most confidently for a rise. Instead, the £ has spurted strongly, leaving the bull speculators in sterling commodities high and dry. When the liquidation has been completed the London metal position will straighten itself out. Meantime, prices may easily fall a little further before a recovery sets in.

LITHUANIAN MATCH MONOPOLY.

The payment of $2,000,000 due to the Lithuanian Government on Friday from Kreuger and Toll was not made, and the Government granted a request for a postponement. The payment is in connection with the granting of a match monopoly.

GERMAN GOLD COVER.

According to the Reichsbank's weekly statement, issued on Saturday, gold and foreign currency stand at 1,020,500,000 marks (£51,025,000 at par), as compared with 1,019,000,000 marks (£50,950,000) last week. Bank note circulation rose to 4,231,000,000 marks (£211,550,000 at par), as against 4,006,000,000 marks (£200,300,000), giving a gold coverage of 24.1 per cent., compared with 25.4 per cent. a week ago.

IMPERIAL CHEMICAL FINANCE.

The time has arrived when the shareholders of the Imperial Chemical Industries, Ltd., might reasonably ask for a comprehensive statement showing just what they possess in the £99,482,669 of assets owned by the company (says The Observer). The report they have received gives a very interesting summary of the many and varied interests of the company. It also shows that earnings last year, totalling £4,668,685, while being about 9 per cent. less than in the previous year, were still equal to just over 6 per cent. on the capital, £77,098,195. This is very interesting and encouraging and justifies the directors' view that it is satisfactory. The company is largely dependent on international trade, and to have done so well in times such as those through which we are passing is certainly a matter for congratulation. It is, however, when shareholders look through the statement of assets that they begin to wonder where they are. Of the £99,482,669 no less than £69,264,978 consists of shares in and advances to subsidiary companies. The directors state that this value has been written down by £1,837,596, representing the the value of "works rendered redundant." Beyond the fact that the book value has been taken at or under cost no indication is given of the present-day value of these shareholdings and loans or of the assets that stand behind them.

Combined Statement Desirable.

Then there are shares and debentures in associated companies valued at £6,522,062, and marketable and other investments valued at £9,540,677. Regarding the last figure the report states that the book value is £3,346,565 more than the market value, but the directors meet this fact by an expression of opinion that "Stock Exchange quotations are abnormal," and that it would be premature to make any revaluation of these investments in the present circumstances. They are, no doubt, right, but the shareholders would possibly be more satisfied if some data were given enabling them to judge for themselves. Altogether, therefore, there is £85,327,617 of assets regarding which the shareholders are told practically nothing. A combined balance sheet setting out the property of the company and its subsidiaries and associates, showing the indebtedness of the latter in the form of debentures, mortgages, or otherwise, indicating any intangible assets, such as good-will, etc., and giving, in fact, a clear view of the financial position, is obviously desirable. The company is a great concern. There is every reason to believe that it is being managed, as the directors state, with efficiency and economy. All the more reason, therefore, why it should give the fullest information possible to those whose money it is using.

SOUTH AFRICAN TRANSFER DUTY.

The rate of premium payable in English currency for South African stamps has been reduced by 25 per cent. Consequently the premium chargeable for South African stamps by the London offices of South African companies until further notice wil be 25 per cent. of their face value.

BRITISH GAS LIGHT.

A meeting of the British Gas Light Co., Ltd., is to be held on April 20 to consider resolutions for the cancellation of the 545,000 unissued £1 shares, and the creation of the same number of £1 "B" Pref. shares. These shares will carry, subject to the Pref. Stock, a cumulative dividend of 5½ per cent., and will be redeemable at 105 per cent. in 1967.

RAND MINING PROFITS FOR MARCH.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY.

The Bruiser and the Beard : Stranded Monsters : Easter Idyll.
Mrs. Claude Beddington : The Cockles of Sandymount Strand.

Bearded Bruisers.

I was talking the other day with a friend who has seen some of the biggest boxing matches both in these islands and in America. I was interested to learn that in America most of the big boxers believe in entering the ring with a week's growth of beard on their faces. There are two reasons for this seeming uncouthness. Firstly, if it is not attractive to the female element in the audience, it has a rather terrifying psychological effect on the opponent. The second reason would hardly appeal to sporting instincts on this side. In the frequent clinches which take place, the method employed is to sandpaper your opponent's face with your beard, and in the open fighting to place your blows on the parts thus made tender.

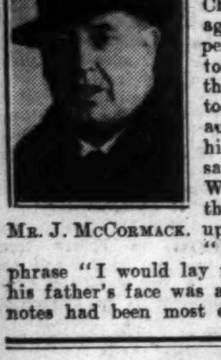
I believe that Gene Tunney was about the only prominent American boxer who believed in retaining a clean and tidy appearance in the ring. He is said to have earned the contempt of a large section of the American boxing fans for this reason. Boxers on this side do not seem to believe in the psychological effect of the terrible appearance, and "sand-paper" has not yet made its obvious appeal to their sporting instincts.

Mrs. Claude Beddington.

Mrs. Claude Beddington who published her reminiscences recently, is one of London's best known hostesses, and is a member of a well-known Irish family, the Mulocks, of Offaly. Among the people whom she has met and entertained are such widely differing celebrities as Mr. George Robey and Mr. W. B. Yeats, Queen Marie of Rumania and Lady Gregory, Pope Pius X. and Mr. G. B. Shaw. Mrs. Beddington has many literary relatives. Lafcadio Hearn was a remote cousin; Miss M. E. Braddon, a Victorian best seller, was her mother's aunt, and she is, therefore, a relative of Mr. W. B. Maxwell, the novelist, Miss Braddon's son. Dinah Mulock, her father's cousin, became Mrs. Craik, the famous author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," and one of her father's sisters married Alfred Austin, who was Poet Laureate before the late Dr. Bridges. Mrs. Beddington tells an amusing little anecdote about Alfred Austin. "My dear," he said to her on one occasion, "have you ever noticed how many great men have been called Alfred? Alfred the Great, Alfred Tennyson, Alfred. . . ." There was a pause, and like a dutiful niece Mrs. Beddington added, "And you, Uncle Alfred."

The Young McCormack.

Mrs. Beddington, it may be remembered, was one of the first to discover the beautiful quality in the voice of a boy, the son of a foreman in a woollen mill near her home. That was in 1905, and the boy was John McCormack, then a youth in his 'teens. She tells a delightful story about Count McCormack's pride in the voice of his son, Cyril. At a musical party in Chelsea some years ago Cyril, after much persuasion, consented to sing. He went to the piano, and, being too shy to face the audience, stood with his back to it and sang "Annie Laurie." When he came to the portamento octave upwards on the word "la-ay," in the phrase "I would lay me doon and dee," his father's face was a study. When the notes had been most effectively taken he turned to Mrs. Beddington, and, with a characteristic shake of his head and a wink, said: "The same old thrick, eh?"



MR. J. McCORMACK.

Easter Idyll.

Walking one day of the holidays along the roads that wind among the undulating coombes of County Down (writes a correspondent), I happened upon a scene of idyllic beauty. Over a sloping fifteen-acre field the ewes were grazing, to every ewe two lambs. At my approach the pairs of lambs ran to take shelter under the thick fleeces of their dams, but their mothers ceased their browsing and stood to look at me, curiosity and defiance and some other sentiment mingling in their eyes. I was soon to know what that third feeling was. It was anticipation; for at that minute—no doubt, their usual feeding time—there strode to a gate in a corner of the field below the farmhouse that topped a neighbouring knoll a man with a sack upon his shoulder. At sight of him, before ever he opened his mouth to hail them, every ewe in the field began to amble towards him, the lambs frolicing, one on either side of every ewe. Presently the whole flock was about him in complete trustfulness, nosing towards the contents of that sack. It was a perfect pastoral scene.

The Valuable Leviathan.

It has always been something of a puzzle to me why the Crown should be so eager to appropriate to itself the stranded carcases of monsters of the sea cast up upon the shores of these islands. The corpse of a land-bound whale seems to me to involve nothing but trouble, either transport or sanitary; for any by-products would hardly be worth the marketing. There was, however, once a whale thrown upon the Irish shore which amply repaid recovery. This beast landed at Carlingford and was thrown up alive. The local authorities put it out of its misery, and held a post-mortem investigation in the interests of science, when it was discovered that there were three teeth in its head which emitted a strange sheen. They were forthwith extracted and tested, and it was learned—I have the authority not only of Gerald du Barry, which might be impugned, but also that of the Four Masters—that every tooth weighed fifty ounces Troy and consisted of pure gold. One of these teeth was kept as evidence in Bangor in charge of the clergy for some centuries. This happened a very long while ago, and has not recurred since. Perhaps, the continued interest of the coroners in carcases represents the incurable optimism of the Exchequer.

Cockles.

Whenever I return from a visit to the West of Ireland, writes a correspondent, I carry with me memories of cockle soup and cockle suppers. For some reason the popularity of this attractive mollusc has declined in Dublin; perhaps, it is because the cockles obtained at Merrion and Clontarf were at one time suspected of being contaminated, which made people chary of eating them. About one hundred years ago one of the diversions of Dublin folk was to spend Sunday on Sandymount Strand gathering cockles, which were packed in baskets and brought home to be boiled in milk. The cockle-picker needs to be familiar with the habits of his quarry, which burrows by means of its "foot," so that it is necessary to watch carefully the markings on the sand in order to capture it. The same "foot," a projection shaped like a ploughshare, enables it to skip a few inches at a time. On a moonlight night, when the tide is out, an expert will easily fill a basket where an ordinary observer would be unable to see any cockles whatsoever.

QUIDNUNC.

A SOUTHERN LETTER.

The Season of Sport : Political Friendship : Village Shopkeepers' Dilemma : Cork's Schemes.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

CORK, Sunday.

MARCH came in like a lamb, but has chosen to go out like a lion, and, what is more, seems bent on carrying its activities into the present month. For the past week the weather has been either mild and very rainy or dry and unpleasantly cold. The only constant feature has been the wind, and that was too lively to be comfortable. Signs that the winter is ending are not lacking, however, in other quarters, and the shops are already beginning to display tennis rackets in their windows.

Hunting is over now, and the football season is drawing to a close. Munster, though she did not repeat last year's achievement in beating the other provinces, can be fairly satisfied with her Rugby record, and the Southern teams gave a good account of themselves in their matches with the Dublin clubs. The Munster Senior Cup still remains to be decided. Constitution, after a replay, just managed to win their semi-final against Sunday's Well, while Dolphin and Garryowen (last year's finalists) contested the other on Saturday.

Hockey, especially ladies' hockey, has made great strides in the South, and the number of Munster teams has been steadily growing. The Cork ladies' team, in particular, is to be congratulated on entering the final of the Irish Cup, having beaten the holders, Pembroke Wanderers. It is worth noticing that one of the members of this team, Miss Kearney, is the daughter of Mr. D. Kearney, who only last year was playing in the final of the men's Irish Cup. Such a situation must be unusual, if not unique, in Irish sport.

POLITICAL FRIENDSHIP.

The opening of the Irish Industrial and Agricultural Fair is fixed for May 11th, and one aspect of the ceremony has a peculiar significance at the present moment. For the first time since the Treaty was signed, President de Valera and Mr. Cosgrave will stand on the same platform, and it is expected that members of both the present and the past Executive Council will also attend. The occasion is a fitting one, and will be a sign that the old personal bitterness has ceased to be a characteristic of politics in Ireland.

As for the Fair itself, one must congratulate those responsible for the swift way in which they have made their preparations. Building on the site was commenced only last November, and many people doubted that it would be finished by May. But the long spell of dry weather helped the building operations, and at the moment all the halls have been completed save one. The officials express confidence that everything will be in readiness by the date fixed for the opening ceremony.

VILLAGE SHOPKEEPING.

Times are bad for most of us, but especially so for the shopkeepers in our small country towns. It is becoming more and more evident that there has been a serious decline of trade in these centres in recent years, and people that are in touch with the situation are beginning to show signs of alarm. The problem came up for discussion on two occasions last week—at the Distributive Workers' Congress and at the annual general meeting of the Cork Town Traders' Association.

At the former meeting it was quite rightly pointed out that the senseless multiplication of small shops is partly responsible. Even our villages can boast of two or three drapery shops and half-a-dozen provision stores, and one is inclined to marvel how the proprietors make any living at all. It has been suggested that the licensing of shops might have some effect in reducing their numbers, but one can hardly believe that it would have this effect. At any rate, the system seems to have made no difference in the number of our public-houses.

The Cork Town Traders' Association views the problem from another angle. It is convinced that the hawkers and "travelling shops" are the main cause of the trouble, and is devoting most of its energies in an attempt to stamp them out.

CHANGED HABITS.

But there is another cause for this decline in business, which has not received much attention, and which yet may prove to be the principal one. Within the last ten years or so the habits of our country folk have changed immensely, thanks to the development of 'bus services. Formerly the housewife would buy her clothes and provisions in her own village, but nowadays she takes the 'bus to Cork or Limerick, and gets them there. The traffic returns of the 'bus companies show plainly that the country people are being brought more closely into contact with the big towns than ever before.

From this contact the rural centres are bound to suffer in the matter of trade, and one cannot look for much of a revival, whatever steps are taken. It is an unfortunate situation, and the most one can hope is that the bottom point of the decline has now been reached.

CORK'S SCHEMES.

Dubliners are inclined to cast a half-humorous eye on the various "schemes" which emanate from Cork, and it must be admitted that most of these are more ambitious than practical. At the same time there is no denying that several ideas which had their origin here have already been translated into action with very good results. Among these is the Cork Poultry-Keepers' Association, which was started in 1929, and which seems likely to spread its activities beyond County Cork.

The object of the Association is to encourage the breeding and proper management of utility fowl and eggs, and certainly the matter is one which is of the greatest importance to Irish farmers at the present day. As was shown at the Association's annual congress in Cork last week, the poultry and egg trade has been steadily growing in Ireland during recent years, and the export of eggs from Cork alone in 1931 was double what it was in 1919. A society of this kind should be of great value in encouraging the wise development of this industry.

NEWSAGENTS' DANCE.

A dance and whist drive in aid of the Benevolent Fund of the Irish Retail Newsagents', Booksellers' and Stationers' Association will be held to-morrow night in the Gresham Hotel, Dublin.

NOTES FROM THE "NATIONAL."

UNIVERSITIES' CONGRESS.

MR. TADHG O'NEILL, President of the Students' Representative Council of University College, Dublin, and Mr. Kevin Keary, the Secretary, left for Oxford last Wednesday to represent University College at the Universities' Congress, which is being held there this week. This, the seventh Congress, opened on Friday, March 31st, and will continue until Wednesday, April 6th, on which day incidentally the Trinity Term in College commences.

The small band of engineering students at present touring England also intend to visit Oxford. On Saturday they finished their study of the State Laboratory at Teddington and trooped up to London town that they might the better hear how went it with "National" in the final of the Senior Leinster Cup.

Everyone watched intently the progress of the College team into the final. Lansdowne, Wanderers and Monkstown fell before the strong College XV.; there was a halt at Blackrock. That was rather unsettling, but finally Blackrock was vanquished also, which left National with the last and biggest hurdle to clear — or not, namely, Bective Rangers. It was unfortunate that Saurin should have been injured in the first tussle with Blackrock. E. Power, who had played full-back for the all-conquering second team, replaced Saurin at that position for the next match. The captain, P. J. Roche, showed himself at the top of his form against Blackrock. Playing at out-half, he is about the most trustworthy man they have; for even when on the Saturday previous most of the team fell very much below their usual standard, Roche nevertheless played brilliantly. Kiely and MacMahon appeared to better advantage that day, both being scorers. Excitement ran rife on Saturday when a large number of students appeared to cheer them on in their final attempt. The saffron and blue was not to be daunted, despite the dark word which went around saying that Bective, of all Leinster teams, was "National's" "bogey."

P. J. ROCHE.

On Saturday next the College Association Football Club will celebrate. There is to be a social reunion, for which elaborate preparations are being made. At the dinner, which will follow a Past v. Present match, there will be present about forty people, these representing seasons of football since the founding of the club. A Past v. Present contest is always a very enjoyable affair, notwithstanding trepidations on both sides, though, of course, provoked from a different point of view.

Mr. T. O'Rourke, B.Comm., H.Dip. in Ed., and Mr. Eugene O'Reilly, B.Comm., B.A., also are organising for the meeting of the Graduates' Dinner Club for the month of April. This is one of the most successful clubs in or out of College, and representative of many shades of political and religious thought.

THE STAYERS.

The tennis club will commence activities early next term; already the captains are elected, and the treasurer is collecting subscriptions. Mr. Hugh Fitzpatrick has been elected captain and Mr. Kevin Keohane and Mr. Roger McHugh occupy again the positions of secretary and treasurer respectively, having been re-elected; while on the committee there are Messrs. P. L. Flanagan, J. Sheehan, J. O'Connor and J. Ryan. Miss Ryan is the new ladies' captain.

Only the Walking, Swimming and Boat Clubs remained active during the holidays. On Easter Monday the walkers went on a twenty-five mile route to Enniskerry, through Sallygap. Yesterday they met again at their meeting-place at Rathfarnham, this time at 11.30 a.m., and not 9.30 a.m., as it was on Easter Monday, so that one could notice an increase in numbers on the previous walk as they set out for Ticknock, from thence making for Loughlinstown.

The Golf Club at the Dollymount Golf Course, has advanced to the third round in the President's Challenge Cup, offered by the Right Hon. Sir Dunbar Plunket Barton, Bart. Next term play will commence for the Cup presented for competition by Mr. McGilligan, T.D., and also for the Captain's Prize. The Captain this year is Mr. P. Ryan. At present Mr. Ryan is perplexed trying to pick a team of foursomes comprising ten players, playing on handicap for the Barton Cup. Any wishing to be considered for places are requested to mark three cards on any golf course, and to have them signed and sent to the committee in order that they may select a team. Up to date about twenty have entered their names.

THE BEGINNINGS.

The first dance of the Trinity Term will be held under the auspices of the Boat Club. It will take place on Friday next in 86.

The first impression of the Cumann Gaodhbolach, and, be sure, it will be its best, may be had on attending the Sgoruidheacht which will occupy the opening meeting of the term. That is a reminder that for the three posts in University College—the Professorship of Irish Language and Literature, the Lectureship in Modern Irish Language and Literature, and the new Professorship of Modern Irish Poetry—sixteen applications have been received.

The first debate announced is that of the Commerce Society: "That economic progress has sounded the death knell of the railroad." Mr. H. T. Gallagher, managing director of Urney's, Ltd., has offered a number of books and pamphlets to be competed for in this Society. The works include "This Age of Plenty," by C. Marschall Hattersley, M.A., LL.B.; "The Deadlock in Finance," by Arthur E. Powell, and "The Flaw in the Price System," by P. W. Martin. There appear to be only two possible candidates for the coming auditorial elections, Miss Doris O'Brien, who is treasurer to the society, and Mr. P. J. Hogan, who is a College "blue" on the swimming team. The Society's big concern in 1933 will be the Universities' Commerce Congress, which is to be held in University College, Dublin.

An important announcement, and one which will interest science students, is about one of the two Radium Exhibitions offered annually by the Royal Dublin Society. One of these positions will shortly become vacant, and will be open to science students and graduates of University College, Dublin. The holders of these Exhibitions are responsible for the routine work of pumping off radium for therapeutic purposes, and may make mutual arrangements for the distribution of the work; which occupies, on the average, about three days per week throughout the year for each holder.

THE SCREEN.

THE LANGUAGE BARRIER.

ANTHONY ASQUITH'S FUTURE.

BY OUR CINEMA CORRESPONDENT.

"THE greatest misfortune that ever afflicted the screen was that 'talkies' were allowed to come when they did," Mr. Adolphe Menjou, one of the most prominent of screen actors, said in an interview before he left Elstree on his return journey to Hollywood. "The big producers made a tragic blunder," he continued, "and now they know it. They had a product universally marketable, and by creating the language barrier they threw away half their market. I believe that film-making by present large-scale factory methods is doomed. Ours is the only business in which mass production has resulted in higher overhead costs and a higher percentage of failures. The real successes number 15 per cent."

The advent of speech to the screen has undoubtedly given a chance to European countries to challenge Hollywood's domination; but so far Hollywood has not been seriously disturbed. About the universality of the film Erich Pommer, the famous German producer, is of the opinion that "the subject matter of a film is the main consideration." "The idea itself must be capable of being understood all over the world," he says. "It is absolutely necessary to take into account those great human emotions that are the same in all countries." Getting those emotions into speech has made some difference, however, and only Chaplin seemed to be aware of the fact hitherto.

ANTHONY ASQUITH'S NEXT?

It is announced that Mr. Anthony Asquith has resigned his position with British Instructional Films, for which company he has made a series of films that was largely experimental. The best known, and easily the most successful financially, of his films was "Gallipoli" (or "Tell England," as it was entitled elsewhere), but his "A Cottage on Dartmoor" is generally recognised as one of the finest films yet made. It is probable that the lyrical quality of his work will limit his development, but there are few interested in the future of the screen who will not watch for his next film. Where will he go? What will he do? To Berlin or to Hollywood, or to a new British company? There is yet no indication.

About Christmas London saw a film version of "Alice in Wonderland," which had been made especially for young children. It is now reported that another version is to be made in Hollywood by Dan Venturini for universal exhibition. It ought to be worth while, if it be well done.

POPULAR FILMS.

At the Metropole "Congress Dances" has been so successful that it is retained for a second week. This musical romance, in which political intrigue plays a secondary but important part, is excellent entertainment finely calculated to please all kinds and conditions of people. How a Tsar who had come to the Congress of Vienna to close the career of Napoleon was nearly diverted from his task by a little glove-seller is a thin tale. But when the pomp and ceremony of the famous Congress and the scheming of the wily Metternich are added to magnificent acting, brilliant direction and tuneful music enthralling entertainment is the result.

Lilian Harvey is likely to charm more than the Tsar Alexander from the work of the moment; her performance is a delight from beginning to end. Conrad Veidt, one of the truly great actors of the screen, gives a memorable impersonation of Metternich. And there is "Live, Laugh and Love" which everyone will want to sing. "Congress Dances" is supported by the usual varied programme.

At the Corinthian a very different kind of film has also been so attractive that it is retained for a second week. "Frankenstein" is as entertaining as it is horrifying: the story of a scientist who made a monster which he could not control. By piecing together fragments from many bodies the young Frankenstein contrived the semblance of a human being, which was vitalised by electricity. With the brain of a notorious murderer the monster could only destroy, and it is only when much havoc has been wrought that it is itself destroyed at the scene of its making. The hocus-pocus in the laboratory does nothing to lessen the thrill to be had from this powerful film which readers of Mary Shelley's book may find a little tame. Colin Clive, Boris Karloff and Fred Kerr are responsible for excellent acting.

DOUBLE FEATURES.

As "The Great Lover" Adolphe Menjou will not be found disappointing at the Savoy. As Paurel, a great tenor and one who had played with love all his life, Menjou is the suave and elegant gentleman who falls ardently in love with a young soprano. Happiness was for him a mirage, and he is outplayed at his own game. Adolphe Menjou is, as usual, calmly satisfying; Ernest Torrance is amusing as a valet; Balcanova is a temperamental opera "star," and Herman Bing a delightful impressario. The well known London actor, Leon M. Lion, impersonates a Chinaman in "Chin Chin, Chinaman," a passable British film. At the organ Mr. Philip Dore offers "Song of the Sea," in "The Storm" is an impressive item. This organ recital becomes more and more popular with the succeeding weeks.

At the Capitol the east of a New York drawing-room and the west of the great open spaces struggle for accommodation in "I Take This Woman," in which Gary Cooper and Carole Lombard demonstrate that "the twain" may meet. Tom McNair and Kay Dowling marry, but he finds himself uneasy in society and she finds a ranch too arduously dull. It is an old, old story; but well told and finely acted. All who enjoyed "Tom Sawyer" will enjoy "Huckleberry Finn," which is also in the Capitol programme this week. It is not Mark Twain's story, as Sawyer takes precedence of "Huck," but with Jackie Coogan as Tom and Junior Durkin as the stolid "Huck," that will, doubtless, be overlooked by all except the purists. With refreshing humour, boyish pranks and a little sentimentality, "Huckleberry Finn" is quite good light entertainment. On the stage "The Dinkie Denton Trio" offer "Little Bits of Everything," with Charlie Harvey and his Capitolians in a novel programme.

VARIETY.

At the Pavilion, Dun Laoghaire, for the first three days of the week the outstanding item in a well-balanced programme will be "My Wife's Family," fresh from its seven weeks' run at the Grafton. In this film Gene Gerrard, the new Irish screen comedian, will be found irresistibly funny, so that the film is certain to be found completely satisfying entertainment. From Thursday to Saturday "East of Boreno" and "What Wives don't Want" make a programme that should attract everyone in Dun Laoghaire. Merely to see the trip through the jungle in "East of Borneo" would justify a visit to the Pavilion; and the ironic comedy is thrown in! An excellent programme.

At the Sackville from Sunday to Wednesday Marie Dressler and Sally Blane will be found in "Vagabond Love," together with Conrad Nagle and Lila Lee in "The Second Wife." From Thursday to Saturday Bessie Love will be seen in "Conspiracy" and Hugh Trevor in "Sporting Life." There will be the usual full and varied supporting programme.

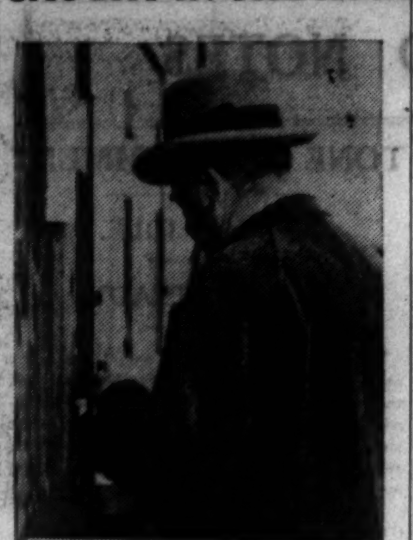
At the Grafton pride of place in an excellent programme is given to "The Ghost Train," a thrilling film in which Cicely Courtneidge, Jack Hulbert and Donald Calthrop take leading parts.

OLD WESLEY RUGBY DANCE.

The Old Wesley Rugby Football Club and Ladies' Hockey Club held an enjoyable dance in the Metropole Ballroom, Dublin, on Saturday night. The arrangements were carried out by a committee, including Mr. George Robertson, President, Old Wesley R.F.C.; Messrs. F. W. Elliott, E. W. Massey, G. M. Bray, V. Gray, G. Ross, D. C. Walker, M. C. Walker, Miss E. Toft, Miss O. Armstrong, and Miss Wilson.

The attendance included Mr. C. Adams and party, Mr. J. Paul, Mr. J. Foff, the Misses Thompson, Miss M. McClure, Mr. and Mrs. Griffin, Miss McConnell, H. Good, Mr. D. D. Cassidy, Miss Hanna, Mr. H. Woods, Miss N. Bishop, Mr. C. Carroll, Mr. A. W. Love, Mr. W. G. Taylor, Miss G. Davies, Mr. N. T. Bailey, Miss Brown, Mr. E. G. Mulhern, Mrs. O'Reilly, Mr. K. Purcell, Miss E. Payne, Miss Robertson.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT.



M. Alphand, the French Minister, placing a bet on the "tote" at Naas Races on Saturday last.

AN ACADEMY CONCERT.

ENJOYABLE CHAMBER MUSIC.

AT the Royal Irish Academy of Music on Saturday night there was a Members' Concert; for which an attractive programme had been arranged. It consisted wholly of instrumental Chamber Music. In an interval there was happy opportunity for members and their friends to discuss musical and other matters over cups of tea.

It is seldom that one sees Miss Rhona Clark, L.R.A.M., a member of the Academy teaching staff, in as prominent a place in a programme as her artistic ability deserves. This was one of several reasons for welcoming her part in last Saturday's concert. Another of the reasons was the inclusion of one of the least often performed of Beethoven's Sonatas. Only a technique far advanced can spread the Sonata in E. op. 109, in clearness and shapeliness before listeners. When, as in Miss Clark's performance, it is so spread, it appears as an unexpectedly graceful and beaming leader of Beethoven's last group of pianoforte works, of which the "Hammerklavier" Sonata, op. 106, was the significant precursor. Some amateurs in Dublin may remember that Paderewski, on one of his last visits, played the next Sonata in the series, the op. 110. In that period Beethoven was giving more than his usual attention to the use of the device of variations. In the Sonata that was played by Miss Clark there is to be noticed a characteristic of Beethoven's later work, which suggests that the composer hovered sometimes between allowing his treatment of the chosen themes to stand simply as a full and free development or, on the other hand, setting it forth in formal variations. The geniality of the composer's thoughts in this Sonata seemed to be the point of Miss Clark's brilliantly sustained interpretation.

Allowing herself no easy triumphs, Miss Clark afterwards undertook two very exacting movements of Chopin—the Impromptu in F sharp, and the Scherzo from the B minor Sonata.

CHAMBER MUSIC.

In the time of Esposito, Twelvetrees and Simonetti at the Academy there was much ambitious chamber music study. There seem now to be signs of a renewal of that pursuit in earnest, under the guidance and eager impulse of Signor Grossi. On Saturday one heard an excellent quartet, led by Signor Grossi himself, with Miss Posy Schreider (violin), Miss Eileen Woods (viola) and Miss Myrrha Jephson ('cello) as the other members. One of the works performed brought to notice a probable factor in Signor Grossi's devotion to chamber music. It was a quartet by Bazzini, an Italian violinist and composer of last century. Bazzini's name is known to most people solely as that of the composer of a favourite violin piece, "Ronde des Lutins." He was for many years director of the Conservatoire of Music at Milan, and still held that position when Signor Grossi went to the Conservatoire. In his later years he composed much serious music, including six string quartets, and it was one of these quartets that was introduced to a Dublin audience on Saturday.

The work deserved its place in the concert. It exhibits melodious themes and orderly treatment. There seemed to be some want of distinction of mood between the first and second movements. It is possible, however, that a more imaginative performance of the second movement would have avoided that appearance. Signor Grossi was personally responsible for the conspicuous brilliance given to the playing of the finale.

A Haydn quartet was played with a beauty and balance of tone and a perfection of ensemble that spoke well for the individual skill of the four players, as well as their leader's grasp of the principles of chamber music direction. How seldom one hears any other movement of Tchaikowsky's Quartet, Op. 11, than the familiar andante cantabile. The Academy Quartet played the Scherzo movement in addition to the winning and always soothing slow movement.

OBBLIGATO.

DIFFERENTIAL INCOME TAX.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—There seems to be some expectation that the present Free State Government may differentiate the income tax on English and foreign, as compared with Irish, investments. I do not think this would induce many people to transfer money from English and foreign to Irish securities, and it would undoubtedly cause many to leave the country.

Personally, I spend my income, which is derived principally from English investments, in this country, and give a considerable amount of employment. I have as much money invested in Ireland as I think prudent, and, if my income tax is materially increased, I shall have to reduce the number of my employés. Moreover, if the Free State goes out of the British Empire, and forfeits the double taxation relief which we get at present from England, I should be obliged to diminish the employment which I give by nearly half, or leave the country.

As I am one of those who believe in our association with the British Empire, I conclude from Mr. Twomey's speech at Glasnevin that my departure would commend itself to the Republicans.—Yours, etc.,

"SHE STOOPS TO CONQUER."

AT CLYDE ROAD PAROCHIAL HALL, DUBLIN.

A creditable performance of Oliver Goldsmith's famous comedy, "She Stoops to Conquer," was given in aid of St. Bartholomew's Missionary Sale in the Parochial Hall, Clyde road, on Saturday afternoon. The homely humour of the piece was brought out in a manner that provoked frequent laughter. Miss Mary Mansfield was a winning Kate Hardcastle, while Miss Patricia Harding was natural as Miss Neville. The part of Mrs. Hardcastle was well sustained by Miss Eve Dawson. As the hospitable Mr. Hardcastle Mr. Arthur Malley was convincing, while Mr. W. Wilson Kelly, as the rakish, good-natured Tony Lumpkin, entered fully into the spirit of the character. Mr. Noel Gilbert, as the bashful Young Marlowe, caused plenty of fun. Mr. Henry Mansfield showed promise as the ardent lover, Hastings. Other useful members of the company were Miss Hazel Shelly, Mr. Walter Weldon, Mr. Jack Hamerton and Mr. Wilson Kelly, senior.

The play was produced by Miss L. Campion.

DUBLIN THEATRES.

This week's programme at the Gaiety Theatre will be Mr. Rudolf Besier's famous play, "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." On its previous visit to Dublin this play achieved a remarkable success, and with another good company this week success is likely to be repeated. The play, which is being presented by Mr. Prince Littler's company, had a "record" run of over six hundred performances in the Queen's Theatre, London. The theme of the play is the poet's, Robert Browning, love story.

The cast is headed by Miss Nora Delany, who plays the part of Elizabeth Barrett. Other players are Mr. Arthur Bowers as Edward Barrett, Mr. E. Duncombe Branson as Robert Browning, Miss Vivienne Jefferies as Henrietta Barrett, and Miss Corinne Bouchier plays the part of Bella Hedley.

"The Chocolate Soldier," Strauss's famous opera, which is founded on George Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man," is the attraction at the Olympia Theatre this week. It is being produced by the Fitzgerald Operatic Company, and with the captivating music and brilliant dialogue "The Chocolate Soldier" should make a wide appeal to the Dublin theatre-goers. The cast will include Miss Lena Munro, Miss Joan Burke, Mr. W. H. Jones, Miss Florence Howley, Mr. Joseph O'Neill, Miss Nellie O'Flanagan, Mr. Irvine Lynch, Mr. J. C. Browner, Mr. C. O'Shea, and Miss Annie Doyle. The chorus will be a special attraction, and there will be an augmented orchestra.

There will be a good variety programme at the Theatre Royal this week. Mr. Lew Lake is staging a show that will include many "stars," such as Miss Vesta Victoria, who will sing many old favourite songs, including "Grace Darling" and "Poor Old John." Other artists will be Fred Barnes, Florence Smithson, and Tom Jones, the comedian.

At the Gaiety Theatre on Thursday afternoon, "What's become of the Fairies?" a play, will be presented in aid of the Soldiers', Sailors' and Airmen's Families' Association, of which Lady HolmPatrick is the President.

The British Legion.

Speeches at Waterford Dinner.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

WATERFORD, Saturday Night.

A LARGE gathering attended the first annual dinner of the Waterford Branch of the British Legion, which was held in the Imperial Hotel, Waterford, to-night. Major R. H. Carew, M.C., Vice-Chairman of the local branch, presided in the absence of Sir Edward Garraway, K.C.M.G., President. The attendance included the Marquess of Waterford.

CAPT. REDMOND.

Captain F. C. Edmonds, Waterford, announced that the following telegram had been sent to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales:—

"Waterford Branch of the British Legion, assembled at dinner, offer assurance of loyal devotion and appreciation of your interest in Irish ex-Service men."

The following was the reply received from Buckingham Palace:—

"Chairman, Waterford Branch, British Legion.—Please convey my thanks to the members of the Waterford Branch of the British Legion for their good wishes, which I very much appreciate."

The toast of "The King" was formally proposed and duly honoured.

The toast of "The British Legion" was proposed by Major Carew. With the toast were coupled the names of Major-General Sir William Hickie and Mr. A. P. Connolly.

LAW AND ORDER.

General Hickie, replying, stressed how important it was that the British Legion Organisation should keep rigidly clear of politics. Irishmen, he said, of all people, ought to set an example in obedience to law and order and obedience to the Government by law appointed.

Mr. A. P. Connolly said that he had been asked very many times recently whether, in view of the changes in the political life of the country, there should be any change in the Legion and whether these changes would have any effect on the Armistice Day observances.

"In regard to that particular matter," he said, "all I will say is that while it has not been considered by the Council of the Legion, one has only to reflect for an instant as to what the Legion really is, and what it does, to find the answer. No matter how people may twist our ideals, they can never get away from the fact that the Legion is purely a benevolent institution, and is as far removed from politics as chalk from cheese. No matter what political changes may come in this country, it will not make the slightest difference to the progress of the Legion."

Continuing, he said that the greatest tragedy in Irish history was unquestionably the Great War, which entailed the loss of fifty thousand of the best of their race. It was only fitting that at least once a year survivors of that awful holocaust should assemble to honour the memory of those who had fallen. They might be called imperialists, but first, last, and over all they were Irishmen. They were just as good Irishmen as those who shouted it from the housetops in various cheap sections of the Press.

THE FREE STATE.

Captain Redmond, replying to the toast of "The Irish Free State," said that it was singularly appropriate that this toast should be honoured at a gathering of Irish ex-Service men, because there was no class in the community to which they belonged desired the peace and prosperity of their country more than they did who went through the Great War. Those who valued a thing most were those who lost it. If Irish ex-Service men were to lose the benefits of the Free State which they now enjoyed there was no section in the country which would appreciate that loss more than they would. He was confident that their comrades throughout the country realised that, and he was also confident that they knew what it was to enjoy the advantages of a great, free, democratically governed constitution which was portion of the British Commonwealth of Nations. Knowing this, he felt confident that the future prosperity of their country depended on keeping what they had got, and making the best of the conditions, which were second to none enjoyed by any other portion of the world to-day.

Bacon Factory May Reopen.

Conference in Limerick.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

LIMERICK, Saturday.

The question of reopening Messrs. O'Mara's bacon curing factory at Limerick, which has been closed for some months, was discussed at a conference held in St. Munchin Diocesan College, Limerick, this evening. The Bishop (the Most Rev. Dr. Keane), who convened the conference, presided, and associated with him were Mr. S. O'Mara, chairman and director, Messrs. O'Mara, Ltd.; Mr. T. Kennedy, Dublin, vice-president, National Executive, Irish Transport and General Workers' Union; Mr. J. Conroy, secretary, Limerick Branch of the Union, and Mr. A J. Lyons, secretary, Limerick Pork Butchers' Society.

At the close of the proceedings, which were private, Mr. Kennedy informed Press representatives it was expected that the factory would reopen in a short time. This view was endorsed by Mr. S. O'Mara.

The Transport Problem.

Mullingar Business Men's Recommendations.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

MULLINGAR, Saturday.

AT a meeting of the Mullingar Chamber of Commerce to-day, Mr. J. J. Macken, solicitor, presiding, a deputation from the Railway Employés' Protection Association came before the meeting, with a view to enlisting the support of the Chamber in an effort to protect the railways from the competition of road transport; also to secure public support for the railway servces.

The following resolution was proposed by Dr. P. J. Keelan, seconded by Mr. L. Hutchinson, and passed unanimously:—

"That this Chamber of Commerce, having heard the deputation from the Mullingar Branch of the Railway Employés' Protection Association, resolve:—

"(1) That it is in the interests of the traders of Mullingar, and of the country in general, that the railways be supported and maintained.

"(2) That the attention of the directors of the Railway Company be called to the necessity for revising their rates to meet the competition of road carriers.

"(3) That this Chamber is of opinion that legislation should be passed regarding road traffic and charges.

"(4) That the Associated Chamber of Commerce be asked to consider this question of road traffic, with a view to taking steps to have railway and road charges put on a proper basis, so as to render the most effective and economical services to the country."

Further Awards at Derry Feis.

Girls' Vocal Solos.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

DERRY, Saturday.

THE Feis Doire Colmcille was continued to-day in the Derry Guildhall, where many interesting competitions took place before large audiences.

Several children's competitions were held at the morning session, the afternoon and evening sessions being devoted to the advanced solo, Irish step-dancing, male quartet and choral classes. The feature of the evening session was the competition for a cup presented by the Rev. P. McDaid, Nebraska, in which the competitors sang two songs of their own selection, one in Irish and the other in Anglo-Irish.

In judging the girls vocal solo Sir Richard Terry said that it was unnatural for a child to sing with the platform style of a concert singer, and music teachers should not encourage children to acquire that style.

Farmer Fined £50.

Failure to Notify Sheep Scab.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

CLONMEL, Saturday.

AT Fethard Court, before District Justice Troy, Michael Walsh, Newtown, Fethard, was prosecuted by Superintendent Fitzgerald for failing to notify the Civic Guards of the existence of sheep scab on his farms at Newtown and Baptistgrange.

It was stated that 107 sheep were affected with the disease.

Evidence was given by Mr. Prendergast, veterinary surgeon, of the Free State Department, that the disease must have been on the farm for six months.

Defendant said that he was not aware that the sheep were suffering from scab until late in November or early in December, and he then treated them by dipping, but Mr. Prendergast did not consider the treatment sufficient. He failed to notify the Guards through ignorance of the regulations and through carelessness.

Mr. F. Murphy, solicitor, said that there had been no attempt to conceal the facts. A nominal penalty would meet the case and be a deterrent to the defendant and others.

Justice Troy said that it was a very serious case. In his opinion the defendant knew the sheep were affected and did not take steps to notify the Guards. The penalty was a fine not exceeding £20, and, if the offence was in respect of more than four sheep, the penalty was £5 for each animal. He imposed a penalty of £50, with three guineas expenses. The Act was for the protection of farmers and men like the defendant himself.

Mr. Murphy asked to have the penalty reduced to £20, but Justice Troy refused to reduce the fine.

Re-Elected.—At the annual meeting of the Cork Port Sanitary Authority, Captain Collins was re-elected Chairman.

The Poteen Evil.

Growth of Traffic in The North.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Saturday.

ONE of the arguments used in Northern Ireland in favour of a reduction of the beer and spirit duties is that an excessive amount of poteen is manufectured in illicit stills and sold throughout the province.

Not a single day passes without some publican in Northern Ireland being asked to purchase a quantity of poteen, a well-known Belfast publican told me. He further pointed out that the manufacture of illicit spirits had increased to an alarming extent, and that 80 per cent. of the convictions for this offence in the United Kingdom had taken place in Northern Ireland.

The poteen, for the most part, is manufactured in isolated country districts, and is conveyed in petrol tins to Belfast and other towns.

Cork Strike Declared Off.

Men Expected to Resume Work To-Day.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

CORK, Sunday.

As the result of negotiations which took place to-day, the strike at Ford's has been declared off, and the men are expected to resume work to-morrow.

The dispute arose over the management's decision of a 10 per cent. "cut" in wages, which came into force on Friday. Five hundred men went on strike the same day.

The trouble assumed even more serious proportions yesterday, when it was calculated that about a thousand men, or two-thirds of the factory, were involved.

To-day a meeting of the men was called at Connolly Hall, the headquarters of the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union. The Lord Mayor, of Cork, Professor A. O'Rahilly and Mr. T. P. Dowdall, T.D., were present, and expressed a wish to act as intermediaries in the dispute. Mr. Dowdall interviewed Mr. Clarke, general manager of the works, this afternoon, and the terms agreed upon were accepted by the men's committee to-night.

These terms involve the resumption of all hands to-morrow on the former conditions of pay, and during the week the situation will be fully gone into. It is understood that Mr. Dowdall will again act as intermediary between the management and the men, as the men belong to no trades union and have no recognised spokesmen.

Threat to Creameries

Managers' Fears.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

ENNISKILLEN, Saturday.

FERMANAGH creamery managers are advocating a tariff to protect the home butter market.

The Fermanagh Branch of the Irish Creamery Managers' Association met to-day. The Chairman (Mr. Owen Corrigan) said that the milk supply was going down year after year, and nothing was being done to arrest the ruin of their chief industry. For six months of the year there was no dairying, and it was a disgrace that they could not now make enough butter for their own needs in the Six Counties. In the Free State they had a tariff to protect butter. The milk supply was dwindling, and already some creameries were threatened with closing. Last year was the worst since 1925. They saw the M.P.'s in regard to the matter, and they would not listen to them. The only thing that would benefit them would be a good tariff against all butter, including Colonial.

Mr. Murphy said that in regard to the tariff in the Free State, he compared a balance sheet of a Northern creamery and one of a Southern creamery, and on the average the whole year round the Northerner got a better price for his butter. The fault lay in the lack of fertilisers. Farmers would not join milk recording associations, and would not attend to the production of grass.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT.

COAL PORTER CHARGED.

(BEFORE MR. CUSSEN.)

Edward McGuirk, coal porter, was charged with having stolen two bags of coal value 5s., the property of Messrs. S. N. Robinson and Co., coal merchants.

The evidence was that the defendant, who had been several years in the employment of the firm, was delivering a lorry load of coal to customers, and that he had taken lumps of coal from the tops of several bags, and put them into two empty bags, which he intended to sell and convert the price to his own use, thus defrauding the persons to whom the coal was consigned for delivery.

Guard 93 E stated that he saw the defendant go into a lane at the rear of Leeson Park House, and having furtively looked up and down the road, he saw the accused man and another man abstract from the bags large lumps of coal and place them in empty bags. The other man ran away when he (the Guard) came on the scene, and had not been caught.

The defendant was remanded in custody till Wednesday.

CHORUS GIRL'S THEFTS FROM LODGINGS.

Josephine Campbell, a chorus girl, with an address in Southampton, was again put forward on the charge of having stolen articles of clothing and a handbag value £8 10s. from Miss Jane Fleming and Mrs. A. E. Carson, with whom she resided in Pearse square, Dublin.

The defendant denied the charge, and said that the articles alleged to have been stolen were purchased by her in England. She had come to Dublin about the middle of December to take part in the chorus at the Gaiety pantomime.

In reply to D.-O. Barry, the accused girl said that she had not taken the handbag, which was among the articles mentioned, to Dublin with her.

Mr. Cussen said that that fact proved her guilt, as Miss Fleming had accurately and in detail given a description of it in her deposition.

Remanding the accused, the Justice said that if her husband would pay £2 compensation of Mrs. Carson, along with £14 1s. 7d. expenses, he would allow her out under the Probation Act. She was remanded until Wednesday in order that she might communicate with her husband.

Derry Rates.—At a special meeting of the Derry Corporation on Saturday rates for the current year were struck at 18s. in the poung, the same as last year.

Fruit Growing Industry.

Call for Protection.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

DROGHEDA, Sunday.

MR. O'REILLY, T.D.; Mr. Kelly, T.D., and Mr. P. J. Curran, T.D., attended a general meeting of the Duleek, Julianstown, Gormanston and Balscadden Fruit-Growers' Association, which was held at Julianstown to-day, when it was decided to send a deputation to the Free State Minister for Industry and Commerce for the purpose of demanding protection for the fruit-growing industry in these areas, against the Scottish, Dutch, Belgian and other foreign dumpers of fruit and fruit-pulp.

Mr. G. King, Chairman of the Association, said that the price of raspberries had decreased from 4½d. a lb. in 1929 to 2½d. a lb. in 1930, while last year the jam-manufacturers would only take 30 tons of raspberries, and would pay only £24 a ton for them. When the Association had asked for an economic price for their fruit the jam-manufacturers stated that they could buy raspberries in Scotland at £16 a ton.

Statistics which were prepared in the Duleek and surrounding districts recently showed that 100 statute acres were under soft-fruits in these areas, representing 145 growers, and that 700 persons were getting four weeks' employment each year on this land during the plucking season. Also 100 men were getting ten weeks' employment preparing the ground each year, making a total of £2,880 in wages from the industry each year.

In regard to plums, the growers sought 3s. per stone, or chip, as an economic price, but could not get anything like that price, as foreign plums were sold in the Dublin market at 1s. per stone or chip.

Mr. O'Reilly, T.D., said that it was his intention to make a strong representation for protection for the fruit-growers, especially the soft-fruit growers. He had been appalled last year when he learned the low prices which Dublin jam manufacturers were paying for fruit from Holland, Belgium and France. They were prices which left the fruit-growers in East Meath and North Dublin no bargaining power.

Portrush as Fishing Port.

BELFAST, Saturday.

During the coming week a serious attempt will be made to establsih Portrush as an important fishing base. Two steam drifters are to operate in the North Atlantic and land supplies at Portrush as the first stage in a scheme which has been promoted by the Northern Ireland Ministry of Commerce, Portrush Urban District Council and the L.M.S. Railway. The two trawlers, the Ocean Lifebuoy and the Ocean Sunlight, were at Portrush yesterday, and were welcomed by Mr. George Steven, Inspector of Fisheries under the Northern Ministry, and by members of the local Urban Council.

It is expected that under the Portrush scheme the people of the North of Ireland will have a regular supply of fresh Atlantic fish cheaper than they pay for Iceland and White Sea fish. Six thousand tons of fish are imported annually from Aberdeen and Hull into Northern Ireland, and it is believed that this could be obtained through Portrush, while large additional supplies could be sent to the English and Scottish markets, and also to the South of Ireland.

Dockers Oppose "Cuts."

Over a Thousand Men Affected.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Sunday.

DURING the week-end strenuous efforts were made to avert the threatened strike at Northern Ireland ports. About a thousand men are involved in the dispute, and indirectly three hundred carters are affected in Belfast alone. A stoppage would dislocate the whole trade of the North of Ireland. The men are resisting the 10d. a day "cut" on time rates and corresponding reductions in overtime rates, which have been in operation in Great Britain since the beginning of the year. The strike was to have taken place on Easter Monday, as the conferences between the two sides had resulted in a deadlock.

Mr. Ernest Bevin, who arrived in Belfast on Friday, met the North of Ireland Shipowners' Association on Saturday. At the forenoon sitting no progress was made when the conference adourned for lunch. Major M'Connell, of the Northern Ministry of Labour, was summonded, and addressed the conference. The representatives of both sides then retired to consider the situation. Subsequently the conference was resumed, and in the late afternoon was adjourned without any decision having been reached.

Following the adjournment the representatives of the men returned to the Union offices, where a meeting took place. A leading member of the Amalgamated Transport and General Workers' Union, to which the dockers belong, stated that the men were determined not to agree to the "cut," and that the employers were equally firm that the Northern ports should fall into line with those in Great Britain. He added, however, that there was no danger of any stoppage of work in the meantime.

Mr. Bevin addressed a meeting of dockers to-day, and subsequently the conference was resumed.

Sunday Night.

It was announced after this evening's conference that the discussions had not resulted in a settlement. The discussions were further adjourned until April 11. There is to be no strike in the meantime.

NEWS SUMMARY.

GREAT BRITAIN.

The French Ministers' arrival in London last night opens a week of important international negotiations.—(Page 7.)

ABROAD.

Severe fighting has broken out in Manchuria, and trouble threatens also on the Korean frontier.—(Page 8.)

Tension between Jews and Moslems in Jerusalem has been fomented by two presumed murders in the city on the borders of the Arab quarter.—(Page 7.)

The ex-Crown Prince has broken his pledge not to engage in politics by issuing a manifesto in support of Hitler's candidature at the second ballot for the German Presidency.—(Page 7.)

FINANCIAL.

London Stock Markets were uninteresting. Gilt-edged stocks receded and other sections were dull.—(Page 3.)

Loans were in fair demand for a Saturday at 1½-2 per cent. Bill rates were firm. Sterling was weaker, and silver and gold improved in price.—(Page 3.)

Ottawa's Opportunity.

"The whole tendency, at least in men's minds," said Mr. Baldwin on Saturday at Worcester, "is to the larger economic unit. That is the natural process of evolution, and it is to help that process that we are going to Ottawa in July." There is no lack of evidence in support of Mr. Baldwin's claim. Since the Treaty of Versailles sought to meet the demands of renascent nationalism by the creation of new States, commerce has fought an uphill and, on the whole, unsuccessful battle against a shortage of markets which the new frontiers, with their tariffs, have rendered even more exiguous. This week in London a sequence of diplomatic conversations will explore a means by which the Central European countries can be saved from bankruptcy. M. Tardieu's Danubian bloc is the plan of the moment, and, no doubt, whatever scheme ultimately is adopted will not differ greatly from it in essentials. Thus within a generation statesmen, many of whom helped to sunder the Austro-Hungarian Empire, are endeavouring, in effect, to reconstruct it as an economic unit. Such reconstruction is sound politics. During periods of general prosperity small countries like Austria, Hungary, Bulgaria and Greece might be able to pay their way, even in these days of vast combinations; in times of stress they have shown that the task is beyond them. Indeed, every one of these States has intimated that, unless prompt relief is forthcoming, they will be forced to suspend all payments on their foreign loans.

Yet, while the Powers are anxiously recognising that small fiscal units are not economic, the British Empire until this year presented the queer spectacle of a huge political federation, which scarcely had exploited any of its economic possibilities. Now, however, by the Import Duties Act, Britain, in so far as she herself is concerned, has accepted the Empire as an economic unit in regard to tariffs. Will the Dominions reciprocate? This is the real question which must be faced at Ottawa. The difficulties are formidable, and manifestly the Dominions cannot be expected to adopt at once the "lock, stock and barrel" attitude which was possible in Britain's case. On the other hand, they can—if they are willing—commit themselves to a road which in time will bring them to the desired goal. Sacrifices will be necessary, and may bear hardly on certain industries, but the rewards are immense. Unfortunately, as invariably happens when important decisions must be made, time at Ottawa will press. "We are really at the cross-roads"—we cite Mr. Baldwin again—"in our imperial fiscal relations. Never has a conference been held in which the opportunities are greater, but if those opportunities should not be taken, the course of events may lead us far apart." These words speak the bare truth. The British Empire, which entered on its second lease of life when the first self-governing Dominion embarked upon the ordering of its own affairs, now must take or leave the chance to start upon its third phase—its transition from a nominal Empire to an active Commonwealth of Nations.

Not unjustly, the very factor which promises most is that which must make success difficult to obtain. Unlike the Danubian bloc, which, if it is established, will be formed of contiguous countries, the British Commonwealth's component parts are scattered throughout the length and breadth of the earth. Some Dominions have tiresome neighbours, and all have interests outside their borders which are not common to their fellows. Nevertheless, this dispersion assures to the whole an ample supply of every known commodity. The Conference's duty will be to find a policy which will overcome the political problems of geographical distances, while it uses these distances for the common weal. Under this new régime, if it is to work, Britain no longer will be more than an equal partner in the federation which she created. It is, therefore, a happy augury that this momentous meeting will be held not in London, but in the capital of the senior Dominion. Failure at Ottawa would be a tragedy; for, in this age of financial and commercial combinations, the nations of the Commonwealth, if they cannot unite, will be drawn insensibly into other groups, and the whole world will have to deplore the missing of the best chance that it has known since the pax Romana to enjoy a steady commercial and political background against which it can develop without fear of convulsions. No other grouping of peoples could offer so much, and many centuries must elapse before the cycle of a yet unmade history presents a like opportunity.

Mountain Dew.

Heavy taxation is a burden to all industries, but none has felt its incidence more severely than the brewing and distilling trades. In the course of last week two important deputations approached their Governments with a renewal of the old plea for a lightening of the liquor duties. One deputation, representing the Free State licensed trade, visited Mr. Sean MacEntee, who could not promise anything at the time; the other, speaking for the publicans of Northern Ireland, was received by the Northern Irish members of the Imperial Parliament at Westminster. Both delegations based their claim on similar points. They contended, in the first place, that the abnormal taxation on beer and spirits was having an uncontemplated effect. These duties originally had been imposed for the raising of revenue; and the liquor trade had been selected for penalisation because it was wealthy, because liquor could be classified as a luxury, and because an increase in its price would tend to reduce drunkenness. To-day drunkenness is a comparatively rare thing in Ireland, which not so long ago was a toper's paradise; and the Governments actually have lost, rather than gained, in Excise duties. The taxation imposed on Irish whiskeys and beers since the War have been so crushing that several firms have gone out of business; and the price of beer and whiskey has increased to such a height that the consumption has dropped heavily. In 1924-25 the Free State distillers paid £2,690,820 in duty to the Government and the brewers paid £4,222,049; in 1930-31 the distillers paid £2,177,677 and the brewers £3,216,650. The situation is, at least, as bad in Northern Ireland and in England, where an additional tax has been imposed on beer during the last year. A second point stressed by the delegations was the deplorable increase in the manufacture of illicit spirits, which they attributed to the high cost of ordinary liquor. There is no question that this evil—whether or not the delegations hit upon the right cause of it—has increased to a grave extent, and is still on the increase. It presents to the Free State one of her most serious problems. The manufacture of poteen has led within recent years to a number of melancholy incidents in the western counties, and all the efforts of the Civic Guard appear to be powerless against its spread. The North is in no better plight. According to the delegation, eighty per cent. of the illicit distilling done in the United Kingdom is done in Northern Ireland. So widespread, in fact, is the practice that it has exercised a very noticeable effect on the consumption of legally manufactured spirits. Such facts cannot be regarded lightly by either Irish Government. By one means or another they must take vigorous and swift action against the poteen-makers.

Athletics in Ireland.

Irish athletes, young and old, throughout the world will be glad to learn that General O'Duffy has withdrawn his resignation from the presidency of the National Athletic and Cycling Association. Although he has been in office for a comparatively short space of time, he has worked wonders in the sphere of Irish athletics. When he assumed control of affairs athletic development in Ireland was at a very low ebb. Internal dissensions had thwarted all efforts to raise the general level of efficiency, and hopes of improvement almost had been abandoned. General O'Duffy brought to his new task qualities of energy, enthusiasm and organising ability which quickly changed the whole aspect of Irish athletics. He won the confidence not only of athletes in the Free State, but also of the clubs in Northern Ireland. He managed to infect his colleagues with his own enthusiasm, with the result that athletics in all parts of the country have acquired a new lease of life. Of course, world champions cannot be produced in a few months, or even in a few years. Much hard work remains to be done before we can expect an Irish team to emulate the achievements of the Finns at the Olympic Games; but our athletes are on the right path at last, and a very great measure of the credit for this fact is due to General O'Duffy. Now that he has returned to the head of affairs we may hope that the outstanding problems of Irish athletics shall find an early solution in order that North and South in concert may be able to devote all their energies to the building up of an Irish team that will do credit to the country. There was a time when Irish runners and jumpers could hold their own with their rivals in any other country in the world; if General O'Duffy is given the necessary support, athletic history may repeat itself.

The Cigarette.

The cigarette, according to a report on the British census of production for 1930, is becoming more popular than ever. Since 1924 the output has increased in Britain by 52 per cent., having risen from some 92 million pounds in 1924 to some 140 million pounds in 1930. It has not gained this advantage entirely at the expense of the pipe and cigar—for the total output of tobacco has risen by 27 per cent.—but their popularity has diminished in a very considerable measure. Will a day ever come when the pipe is nothing more than a relic of a departed age of civilisation? We doubt it, so long as any leisure remains to the world. The cigarette has numerous and great advantages. Its career is short, so that no conscientious scruples about waste need forbid its enjoyment in the few minutes between jobs or interviews or dances. It calls for no laborious process of filling. It can be lighted in a second of time, and, except in the most boisterous of winds, at the first match—therein differing notably from the pipe. It will keep alight for quite a long time if left and forgotten on the tablecloth or the mantelpiece. Moreover, the cigarette is permitted in many places where the pipe dare not enter. Yet it cannot fulfil the functions of the pipe. It lacks the quality of companionship—who can look forward to a long evening's dreaming under the influence of a cigarette? It has no counterpart to the pleasing music of a pipe which has reached the secret and attractive stage of uncleanliness. It does not inspire trust in its users. It is a modern thing which, for all its popularity, never has lost the air of something unfamiliar and exotic. The villain of the piece never smokes a pipe: he rolls his cigarettes.

IMPORTANT DATE FOR TAXPAYERS.

ADJUSTMENTS THAT CAN BE CLAIMED.

APPLICATION OF TIME LIMITS.

TO-MORROW is the last day of the current income tax year, and is an important date for taxpayers to remember, for it is the last day on which claims to repayment of income tax for the year ended 5th April, 1926, can be lodged.

Like the Revenue authorities, who can go back six years in their assessments, so, too, taxpayers, who are entitled to an adjustment of income tax liability by way of repayment, can put forward claims covering the period commencing 6th April, 1925. It does not follow from this that taxpayers can claim to have assessments re-opened which have already become final and conclusive. A time-limit of twenty-one days operates for purposes of appeal against such assessments, and, if no appeal has been lodged at the proper time with the appropriate Inspector of Taxes, these assessments automatically stand good, and are taken into consideration in determining the amount of the tax which may have been overpaid in respect of one's total income. Claims for repayment of tax for the past six years generally relate to allowances in respect of the following:—

(1) Personal (single or marriage) allowance. A taxpayer is entitled to marriage allowance for an entire year even though he does not get married until the last day of the income tax year.
(2) Life assurance premiums, dependent relatives or children.
(3) Interest paid to a bank on loans or overdrafts.
(4) Earned income relief and reduced rate relief on investment income taxed by deductions at the source.

Repayment of tax suffered on British dividends or British Government securities on the grounds of being solely resident in the Free State, as well as claims for refund of excess tax suffered on Free State dividends for the year 1925-26 must be lodged on or before to-morrow.

Claims in respect of losses sustained in farming operations or in trading for the year 1930-31 must also be lodged before to-morrow.

It is important to note that a one-year's time limit applies to such claims.

FELLOWSHIP IN THE CHURCH.

LOOKING AFTER THE POOR PARISHES.

The Church in Ireland has nothing to learn from the Church in England as to self-help, said the Bishop of Portsmouth when making a passing comment in Holy Trinity Church, Rathmines, Dublin, yesterday morning on the object of the offerings, which were in aid of the Poor Parishes Fund.

It was extremely interesting to him, he added, to find that in Ireland they did follow the Christian principle of caring for the weaker brother in parochial organisation, in the same manner as they did in England. It was this kind of thing which developed fellowship in the Church, not only between the weaker and the stronger, for when the stronger in one part of the Church heard what the stronger in another part of the Church was doing, they found that one touch of fellowship and consideration made the whole Church kin.

LORD KITCHENER'S FATE.

TRAPPED IN CABIN WHEN CRUISER SANK.

A retired sea captain living at Cardiff claims to be one of the few persons living who knows the truth of the death of Lord Kitchener.

When the cruiser Hampshire was sunk in June, 1916, off the North of Scotland many fantastic stories were circulated as to Lord Kitchener's fate, but Captain Harold Davies, of Connaught road, Roath, Cardiff, told a reporter yesterday that he has authentic information that Lord Kitchener was trapped in his cabin when the cruiser foundered.

"I have kept quiet for sixteen years," he said yesterday, "because I have been waiting to hear from a warrant-officer, whose name, I think, was Fraser or Foster, one of the few survivors of the Hampshire, who gave me the facts."

Captain Davies, who was in command of a collier transport attached to the grand fleet at Scapa Flow, said that he met the warrant-officer at Chatham Naval Hospital soon after the Hampshire was lost.

"According to the survivor's story, the Hampshire ran into a storm and when the escort of destroyers had to return to Scapa Flow, Lord Kitchener was advised to go below because of the rough sea. Soon after the Hampshire struck a bridle mine and sank within five minutes. It was impossible for Kitchener to have escaped."

The warrant-officer promised to communicate further with Captain Davies, but he had not been heard of since.

"There was a lot of mystery at the time," Captain Davies added, "and I assume that Fraser could not get into touch with me because he had been sent to an unknown destination by the Admiralty."

DELAY IN REPLY TO BRITISH NOTE.

DIVERGENT VIEWS IN THE CABINET.

DENIAL OF ANY SERIOUS SPLIT.

POSSIBILITY OF CONFERENCE WITH IMPERIAL GOVERNMENT.

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

HERE was general disappointment on Saturday when it was learned that the Free State Executive Council, after a long sitting on the revious night, had failed to complete its reply to the British Government n the subject of the Oath and the land annuities.

It was assumed that, in view of the fact that the British Note has been ith the Executive Council since Thursday, 24th March—more than a eek—the meeting of last Friday would have been able to announce the finite despatch of its reply.

It is, of course, true that there is no need for any great urgency in e matter, inasmuch as there is no immediate contingency depending on e reply; but, as was pointed out during the week-end, public opinion here gravely concerned as to the outcome of the situation which has arisen, d, from the purely business point of view, it is eminently desirable that e public should know as soon as possible what they are to expect.

President de Valera has definitely denied that any serious split in the binet has occurred. This is satisfactory as far as it goes; but, as is tural to expect, there are in the Executive Council divergent views on rtain points of detail. Current rumour has it—and it may be stated for at it is worth—that the main difference of opinion has to do with the nts which the Free State Government would agree to leave open to dission in conference with the British Government—if the conference stage ould be reached.

The fact that President de Valera has accepted the invitation to be resented at the Ottawa Conference, and that his delegation will consist of lve persons, is taken as an indication that he does not contemplate the nediate disassociation of the Free State from the British Commonwealth ations. Clearly, any other conclusion would render the acceptance of Ottawa invitation pointless. It is, therefore, assumed that between points of view held by the British and Free State Governments there st be found common ground on which to base an agreement which will acceptable to both. Clearly a conference is indicated.

Admittedly the form of words used in the reply to the British Note will of prime importance, and it is not surprising that so much time and kious deliberation have been bestowed on the work of hammering out he outline of the proposed reply " which, according to the official comniqué published on Saturday, has now been decided upon. According to the common rumour which I have already quoted, Mr. de Valera several of his colleagues favour a more definite formula, closely following the statements which the President has made in public, while certain nisters, including Messrs. O'Kelly, Lemass, MacEntee and Aiken, advoe the adoption of a line which will leave open the door for further effort, ch be necessary.

The Executive Council will again take up the discussion of the final probably to-morrow. If approved, it will then be sent to Mr. J. H. omas, Secretary for the Dominions, in London.

EMPIRE INTEREST IN DISPUTE.

een interest is being displayed through the Empire and in the United States e dispute between Great Britain and ish Free State Government over the h of Allegiance and the Land uities.

AMERICAN INTEREST.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
NEW YORK, Sunday.

ng cables from London and Dublin t the Anglo-Irish controversy are ished in the newspapers in Irish res such as New York, Boston and adelphia, and bear evidence to the iderable interest which is being shown he question. But the anti-British r-whoops," familiar in other days, been conspicuous by their absence. e whole controversy is regarded ly as a matter of political "faceg," and is not taken very seriously. the one hand it is not believed that t Britain will resort to violence for ake of a formula or for an annuity 3,000,000.

the other hand it is felt that Mr. de Valera will hesitate before alienating, by too uncompromising an attitude, the Free State's chief customer, especially in view of the imminence of the Imperial Economic Conference.

The reported hint from Canada that the Free State might be excluded from the Ottawa Conference has attracted much attention here. The entry of Canada into the dispute is regarded as a very significant Imperial development.

With regard to the concluding passage of the above, it should be borne in mind that the report that the Free State might be excluded from the Ottawa Conference has been emphatically denied in the Canadian Parliament by the Canadian Prime Minister himself.

MR. DE VALERA INTERVIEWED.

UNDETERRED BY THREATS.

Mr. de Valera, in a statement to the Special Correspondent of the Daily Mail in Dublin, yesterday, stated:—"While we have been getting on with our work quietly and calmly, English newspapers have become excited, and are imagining things for which there is no foundation. I have said over and over again, and I mean it, that we are anxious to live on friendly terms with England. If the common interests of the two countries were allowed to exercise their natural influence, they would create intimate and friendly relations between Ireland and Great Britain. The only thing that prevents the development of such relations is the claim of the Government of one of the two countries to impose its will on the Government and people of the other.

"A great chance of placing Anglo-Irish relations on a truly pacific and friendly basis now presents itself. We on our part are eager to avail ourselves of it. It is to be hoped that the rulers of Great Britain, learning from the mistakes of their predecessors, will reciprocate our good-will. We are, however, resolved, above all, to establish domestic peace, undeterred by threats, no matter from whom they emanate."

With regard to the land annuities, Mr. de Valera declared: "We hold, and are supported by legal opinion, that these annuities are not due to Great Britain. Up to the present I have not seen any case for their payment made out."

DR. W. B. YEATS.

Dr. W. B. Yeats stated to a News Chronicle Reporter in London on Saturday:—"I would like to see the oath either abolished or so modified that it would be acceptable to both nations. Ireland will not be a pennyworth more loyal because she has taken the oath. The London County Council takes no oath, and it governs far more millions than the Free State Parliament.

ARMY PENSIONS QUESTION.

NO IMMEDIATE ACTION LIKELY.

FROM OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

In connection with the reported intention of the new Government to revise the Army Pensions List, it is understood that the position has been agitated a good deal lately, with the result that it is improbable that any immediate steps will be taken.

The information is that the Labour Party, whose vote in this matter would be vital, is not disposed towards reopening the matter of pensions. A deputation representing those to whom pensions have been granted has been sounding opinion in various directions, with the result that it seems unlikely that a proposal of this kind would be approved by the Dail.

President de Valera and other Ministers were busy in their offices on Saturday.

Yesterday the President spent a quiet day at Howth with his friend, Dr. Farnan, at whose house he was a frequent visitor in the troubled times. With his host he attended Mass at Baldoyle Church. On leaving, he was cordially greeted by a number of people, including Senator Lawrence O'Neill, former Lord Mayor of Dublin.

TRAGIC DEATH OF AN M.P.

GUNSHOT WOUND IN CHEST.

MAN WHO MIGHT HAVE BEEN PREMIER.

MR. E. MARJORIBANKS, M.P. for Eastbourne, was found shot dead in the billiards room at Carter's Corner Place, Hailsham, Sussex, the residence of his stepfather, Lord Hailsham, on Saturday evening.

The brilliant young politician was known to villagers and business people throughout the county, and he was extremely popular. His career had been watched with the keenest interest by all who knew him, and there were many who considered that in the years to come Mr. Marjoribanks would have risen to such eminence in Conservative circles as to become a Prime Minister of England.

Mr. Marjoribanks was, undoubtedly, one of the most brilliant of the younger school of Conservative politicians. Over six feet in height, and always immaculately dressed, he quickly established himself as one of the most popular young men at Westminster. His smile was infectious, and his refreshing good humour and high spirits endeared him to political colleagues and opponents alike.

The news of his death shocked all those in Conservative and Parliamentary circles who had known Mr. Marjoribanks intimately, and many tributes were paid to him yesterday.

Lord Carson, whose "life" Mr. Marjoribanks was engaged in writing, was grief-stricken when he learned of the death.

"Lord Carson feels his loss much too keenly to speak about it now," Lady Carson told a reporter.

Commander Kenworthy, a personal friend, said:—"Ours was a case of two men in opposite political parties striking up a close personal friendship.

"I consider the death of Mr. Marjoribanks a great loss to public life. He was made of the timber from which Prime Ministers are hewn, and with his youth and brains he might have lived to be the leader of the Conservative Party.

"I suppose he would have gone to the Lords, which might have cut off his active career of political leadership; but with his parliamentary flair, sincerity and industry, he was bound to have gone very far indeed.

Mr. Lloyd George said: "I am very distressed to hear of the tragedy; he seemed a very promising young fellow with every prospect of a distinguished career in front of him."

Sir John Simon paid the following tribute to Mr. Marjoribanks:—

"This sudden end to a career of so much brilliance and promise touches all his friends most deeply. I have known Edward Marjoribanks ever since he was an undergraduate, and took the liveliest interest in his progress in public life. Had he lived he would have attained a high place; for he combined courage and sincerity with charm of manner in a way which marked him out for great things It is a terrible tragedy."

OVERWORK.

Early visitors to Carter's Corner Place yesterday were Mr. J. Slater, the Chairman of the Eastboune Conservative Association, and Mr. W. F. Keyte, the Agent.

After his visit Mr. Keyte said to a reporter: "The tragedy has been a terrible blow to the whole of his family. We who worked intimately with Mr. Marjoribanks knew that during the past fortnight he had been in a highly nervous state owing to insomnia, due to overwork.

"He intended, I believe, to go for a sea voyage, and Lady Hailsham had been making inquiries to enable him to do this.

It was Lord Hailsham who discovered his stepson's death. Mr. Marjoribanks was lying partly across a chair in the billiard room with a gunshot wound in his chest. Near the body was a double-barrelled sporting gun. Adjoining the billiards room is a small ante-room which is used as a gun room, and it is believed that it was here that the gun was discharged.

Marks on the floor and walls indicate that Mr. Marjoribanks was standing in the gun room when he received the wound.

He fell to the floor, but, apparently retaining consciousness, staggered or crawled through the open doorway into the billiards room, collapsed across the chair and died immediately. Only one barrel of the gun had been discharged.

Between Lord Hailsham and his stepson there was a very strong bond of affection. Lord Hailsham, although he was very distressed by the tragedy, took charge of matters, telephoning personally for the police and for Dr. Percy Voster, of Hailsham.

Mr. Marjoribanks had arrived at Carter's Corner Place on Thursday to spend the week-end. It was known on Saturday that he had intended to walk round the estate. He did not appear at lunch-time, and it was in the evening that he was found dead.

At the inquest, which will be held at 2.30 to-day, at Lord Hailsham's house, Dr. E. F. Hoare, the Sussex Coroner, will sit without a jury.

The funeral of Mr. Marjoribanks will be at Hurstmonceaux to-morrow.

Mr. Marjoribanks was elected for the Eastbourne Division of East Sussex in 1929.

The figures at the last election were:—

E. Marjoribanks (U.).....	31,240
A. J. Marshall (Lab.).....	5,379
Unionist majority	25,861

This makes the third by-election pending, the others being at Wakefield and Richmond.

It was Mr. Marjoribanks who, in the House of Commons on Tuesday, March 22nd, asked the Chancellor of the Exchequer for information as to the total amounts advanced in respect to land purchase annuities payable by the Irish Free State Government, and was informed that the amount was approximately thirty-two and a half millions sterling.

THE LINDBERGH BABY.

U.S. POLICE CHIEF'S VISIT TO ENGLAND.

Major Schœffel, assistant to Colonel Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey Police, who is said to be on a visit to England in connection with the search for the Lindbergh baby, slipped into England last night as mysteriously as he left America, and a cloak of secrecy was thrown over his arrival at Southampton in the Mauretania.

Infinite care was taken to hide every possible clue to his identity.

A member of the Special Branch of the C.I.D. at Southampton boarded the ship when she berthed.

The New York Mirror declares (says Reuter) that the final negotiations between Lindbergh and the kidnappers began yesterday. The newspaper is able to say that the kidnappers demanded no ransom, and that the baby will be placed in the custody of one of the Colonel's intermediaries at once.

The Governor of Exeter Prison last night stated that there was no truth in the rumours of disturbances among the prisoners. The transfer of one prison officer from Dartmoor to Exeter, which probably gave rise to the rumours, has no significance.

EUROPE'S FATEFUL WEEK.

ALL EYES ON LONDON.

SCOPE OF BRITISH-FRANCO TALKS.

NO AGREEMENT PRIOR TO CONFERENCE.

THE arrival in London last evening of M. Tardieu, the French Prime Minister; M. Flandin, Minister of Finance, and their experts, opens a week of conferences that may have momentous consequences in the affairs of Europe and the world.

To-day there will be British-Franco conversations at Downing street, and on Wednesday there will begin a conference of representatives of Great Britain, France, Germany, and Italy, on the financial and trade crisis in the Danubian countries.

M. Tardieu's visit is not wholly concerned with the Danubian situation. The French and British Ministers will discuss other matters, including aspects of reparations.

M. Tardieu paid a courtesy visit to 10 Downing street soon after his arrival, and was with the Prime Minister for an hour and a quarter and then left for his hotel, where he addressed Press representatives.

COMMON RESPONSIBILITY.

"The issues we have to consider constitute European problems. Is there, indeed, to-day a single question which is not European, even universal?" said the French Premier. "The duty of Governments is to deal with every one of them from the point of view of solidarity. For France and Great Britain it will be especially easy, and for doing so successfully it is good that they should consider together the aims and the means.

"To say nothing of their precious friendship, Great Britain and France are bound by a common responsibility, moral as well as political, arising out of the means at their disposal and out of the identical aspirations of their citizens for an era of peace, fair play and work. Such is the spirit in which our meeting has been decided."

Mr. Macdonald told journalists last night that to-day's discussions would be in the nature of a general survey of the European situation. Undoubtedly, the first point would be the Danubian question, but the agreements would be made at the Four-Power Conference, and not before. The Powers which are to be represented at the Conference would be equally free in every way to contribute to whatever the final agreement may be.

"I have always been a great believer in personal contacts in diplomacy, and I believe that they are more necessary than ever on account of the very intricate and intimate nature of the problems which this century will have to face.

MISCHIEF-MAKERS.

"The policy which we are working out is a policy of co-operation with everybody. We are busy trying to be helpful, and, if anybody at home or abroad is anxious to be mischievous, let them declare perfectly openly that they are opposed to the practical steps that are being taken to secure and maintain the peace and well-being of Europe."

According to a Reuter message from Berlin, the Germania, which frequently expresses the views of Chancellor Brüning, says that Mr. Macdonald's intervention in political affairs guarantees an impartial and independent weighing-up of the interests of the Locarno partner—that is, Germany. Consequently, a result need not be expected from the London meeting which will be prejudicial to Germany.

Other newspapers emphasise that no decisive results are to be expected from it, and that the French Premier will find that any attempt to "intrigue" against the participation of Germany and Italy in a conference of the Danubian States will meet with unyielding opposition by the British Government.

ALONG THE ROAD TO PROSPERITY.

MR. BALDWIN'S HOPE OF THE FUTURE.

Mr. Baldwin, addressing the Bewdley Unionist Association at Worcester on Saturday, said:—"We have already restored British prestige. We have been saved by the amazing courage and common-sense of the ordinary people.

"We shall not be through our troubles in a moment," he added, "but we are heading in the right direction."

The fiscal system was going to be judged on its merits alone. If it did good, the system would continue so long as it did. If it failed it would be changed.

The whole tendency, at least in men's minds, was to the larger economic unit. That was the natural process of evolution, and it was to help that process that we were going to Ottawa in July. He hoped that that conference would lay the foundations of much closer economic union.

"I believe," he concluded, "that in twelve months time we may find that some solid progress along the road to prosperity will have been made, not only by this country, but by the rest of the world."

SONGS AND CHEERS AT DARTMOOR.

WARDERS ON LEAVE RECALLED.

So tense was the atmosphere in Dartmoor prison on Saturday night that every available warder was requisitioned for duty yesterday, and in some cases men who had gone on week-end leave were recalled.

Early yesterday a confused murmuring of noise from "D" block and other halls could be heard outside the prison. Some of the convicts joined in the chorus of "Bye Bye, Blackbird," and others countered with cheers for "Good old James." It was Mr. James who defended many of the convicts at the police court proceedings at Princetown.

There was a good deal of muttering and grumbling when the prisoners were released from their cells for the customary Sunday morning parade, but as soon as they reached the exercise grounds and saw the augmented force of police officers the men marched quietly into the chapel and listened attentively to the religious services.

Princetown's Town Hall, which for three weeks has been a petty sessional court, reverted during the week-end to its normal function. The big dock, capable of holding sixty people, the magistrate's table, and the other fitments of the court have been taken away and replaced by chairs in readiness for the cinema entertainments.

Fire destroyed a marquee at Viceroy's House, New Delhi, on Saturday, when Lord Willingdon was entertaining the Indian Princes at the conclusion of the session of the Chamber of Princes. The cause was a cigarette thrown from a balcony. Nobody was injured.

CROWN PRINCE AND HITLER.

MANIFESTO URGING NAZI'S RETURN.

GERMAN PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION CAMPAIGN.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
BERLIN, Sunday.

ASTONISHMENT has been caused throughout Germany by the action of the former Crown Prince, who has issued a manifesto urging electors to vote for Adolf Hitler, the Nazi leader, in the second ballot of the Presidential election next Sunday.

The manifesto, which is issued from the Crown Prince's castle at Oels, in Silesia, says:—

"Abstention from voting in the second poll of Presidential election is incompatible with the idea of the Harzburg Front.

"Believing that a close Nationalist front is absolutely necessary, I shall vote for Hitler."

The reference to the Harzburg Front is an allusion to a big joint Nazi and Nationalist demonstration held there, at which joint opposition to the present régime was agreed to.

PLEDGE BROKEN.

Surprise is felt because Hitler himself and also Herr Hugenberg, the leader of the Nationalists, who put up Duesterberg in the first ballot, have dropped the idea of the Harzburg Front as far as this election is concerned.

The newspapers supporting President Hindenburg have not been slow in pointing out that the ex-Crown Prince, by issuing a political manifesto, has broken the pledge he gave to the late Herr Stresemann that he would keep away from politics. "His action shows that he is 'no gentleman,'" says the Tageblatt.

The Easter political truce decreed by the Government ended at midday to-day, and extensive drives were immediately resumed by the two leading parties—the Socialists and the Nazis.

The two candidates lowest in the poll in the first ballot have withdrawn, and there are, therefore, only three candidates next Sunday. They are:—President Hindenburg, Herr Adolf Hitler, and Herr Ernst Thaelmann (Communist).

NAZI HIGH-SPEED TOUR.

Though the first ballot resulted in a clear victory for President Hindenburg, it was not decisive, as Hindenburg failed by 150,000 votes to obtain an absolute majority. Only a relative majority is necessary in a second ballot, however, and there would appear to be little doubt that Hindenburg will be re-elected.

This morning Hitler left Munich for Dresden by aeroplane on the first stage of what is claimed to be "the greatest election propaganda tour the world has ever seen." In one week Hitler will speak in every big city in Germany to more than a million people, and to this end aeroplanes and high-power cars are being stationed in readiness all over the country.

Five minutes after the Easter political truce came to an end Hitler began his speech to eighty thousand people in the Stadium at Dresden.

He then flew to Leipzig to address another giant meeting. To-morrow Hitler will fly on to Berlin and thence to East Prussia, addressing four or five meetings every day until the day of the election, next Sunday.

The Socialists will not be idle, and seventy-five thousand meetings will be held by them this week.

As soon as the result of the election is known a fresh political campaign will begin. On April 24th the Diets of Prussia and Bavaria are to be elected, and here the real political views of five-sixths of the German people will come to light; for they will be voting for a party and not a man.

It is on April 24th, therefore, that the real strength of the Nazis will be revealed.

FROM "THE TIMES."

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

M. TARDIEU'S VISIT.

In a leading article The Times to-day states:—M. Tardieu, accompanied by M. Flandin, the French Minister of Finance, arrived in London yesterday and will spend the greater part of to-day in discussions with Mr. Macdonald, Sir John Simon and other British Ministers. Afterwards he will return to Paris, but M. Flandin will remain to take part in the Four-Power Conference on the Danubian plan, which begins on Wednesday. That the Anglo-French conversations immediately precede the Conference is more or less accidental, for they have been in prospect for some time, and will survey a much broader field. The plan will certainly be mentioned, but only as one of the contributions offered towards the economic restoration of Europe, which both Governments have at heart.

Mr. Macdonald in the statement issued last night declared emphatically that there has never been the slightest justification for the suspicion which the visit seems to have aroused in some quarters. The intention of the British Government, he went on to say, is to get the maximum amount of good-will and international cooperation brought to bear upon the solution of international problems.

The object of M. Tardieu's conversations with the British Prime Minister and his colleagues is, adds The Times, to survey the whole economic and financial situation in Europe and to discuss the lines on which the two Governments can co-operate to bring about an improvement or, rather, so critical has that situation become, to avert disaster. Such cooperation has now become urgently necessary, for it is an essental preliminary to that general co-operation between all the Powers without which nothing effective can be achieved.

The idea is not to seek an understanding in any way exclusive of other Powers, still less to work out Anglo-French solutions of European problems to be pressed in a take it or leave it spirit upon other countries equally concerned in the problems, and with an equal right to a voice in their solution. What it is hoped the conversations may achieve is a better understanding of the existing position, with all its complications and implications, and a clearer idea of the ways in which France and Great Britain can most usefully work together with one another and with the other Powers in saving Europe from shipwreck.

DUBLIN CINEMA THEATRES.

SOME HOUSES LIKELY TO CLOSE.

The report that a large number of Dublin cinema theatres will shortly be obliged to close down in consequence of reduced takings, increased taxation and heavy overhead expenses, though not confirmed, appears to be well founded. It is stated in the trade that cinema theatres in the centre of the city are doing most of the business, and taking it from the suburban and smaller city cinemas. With the approach of summer, it is expected that audiences at the suburban and smaller city cinemas will become yet smaller, so that these cinemas, if kept open, must be operated at a loss.

IRISH ATHLETICS AND A FLAG.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION'S DECISION IN DUBLIN.

GENERAL O'DUFFY WITHDRAWS HIS RESIGNATION.

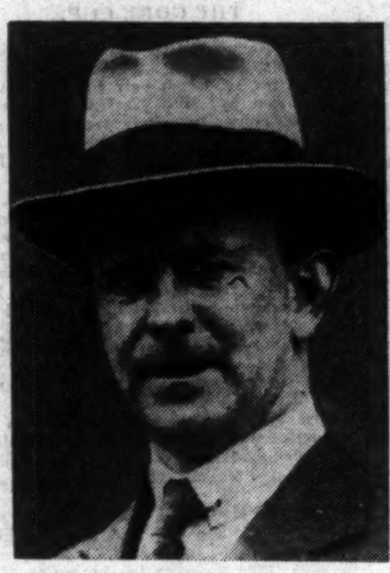
THE proposed settlement of the Ulster athletic dispute in relation to the flag question was discussed at a special congress of the National Athletic and Cycling Association of Ireland, in the Dolphin Hotel, Dublin, yesterday, Mr. P. C. Moore, chairman of the Leinster Council, presiding. The resignation of General O'Duffy was also under consideration.

The meeting, by a majority, approved the agreement, as set out in the proposals of the Belfast Conference, with the proviso that the flag to be used for all international purposes should be the tricolour.

In response to appeals which were made to him by several of the delegates, General O'Duffy, who attended by request, agreed to withdraw his resignation of the office of president.

THE ANNUAL CONGRESS PROPOSAL

The settlement proposed by the N.A.C.A. at the annual congress approves the principle of complete autonomy for athletics in Northern Ireland, and suggests that the associations to govern athletics in the Free State and Northern Ireland unite to form an authority for national and international events under the name of the Irish Amateur Athletic Union, the union to consist of twelve members, three from Northern Ireland and nine from the Free State.



GENERAL O'DUFFY.

The flag of the proposed union to be the arms of the four provinces on a field of St. Patrick's blue, with the letters I.A.A.U. displayed.

The question of the flag to be used in the Olympic Games was left over as a matter for the Irish Olympic Council to decide.

GENERAL O'DUFFY'S LETTER.

General O'Duffy, in a letter to the congress, stated that in a previous letter he had stated that he was returning the unexpended balance to the subcribers, but on re-consideration, he thought it was better to pass it on to the Treasurer of the Association, and he accordingly enclosed a cheque for the amount on hands, together with a balance sheet and vouchers for the scrutiny of the auditors of the Association. He also enclosed a copy of the General Appeal, which he had completed for issue at the time of his resignation.

He earnestly exhorted the delegates to approach the question of the proposed Ulster settlement in a calm, impersonal and dispassionate manner, and with a full sense of responsibility.

Judging by the correspondence from the International Athletic Federation previous to his appointment, there appeared very little doubt that the decision of the Federation on athletics would be similar to that which had been already given in the case of cycling, viz.—that the Six-County area was outside the jurisdiction of the N.A.C.A.

INTERNATIONAL STATUS.

As he could see no alternative but to comply with the decision of the Federation, he immediately set at work to ensure that such decision would be as favourable as possible. He believed that the Council meeting of the Federation was called principally for the purpose of confirming the claim of the English A.A.A. in regard to the Six-County area, but owing to the case made by their representatives the question was referred to the Los Angeles Congress. While he valued the necessity for a strong and virile athletic organisation at home as of premier importance, he believed that this could not be maintained unless they maintained their international status.

"If the N.A.C.A. should cease to be recognised internationally," continued General O'Duffy, "our athletes and cyclists will not be allowed to compete at the Olympic Games; they will not be allowed to compete at any sports meeting outside Ireland, and no athlete or cyclist from Britain or any other country will be allowed to compete at a sports meeting here. Before the Tailteann Council got a single entry in athletics from abroad for the forthcoming games I had to give an assurance in writing that the N.A.C.A. was recognised by the International Federation. This is an important point. If any Irish athlete now living outside Ireland competed at the Tailteann Games he would be subject to suspension unless we continued to affiliate with the Federation.

A POLICY OF ISOLATION.

There may be some who honestly think that unity in Irish athletics is more important than the advantages of international competition; but, before sacrificing such advantages, we should bear in mind that a policy of isolation, with all its drawbacks, will not bring us unity. There will be in the Six-County area a branch of the English Association, whose members will have international privileges, and at whose sports meetings athletes from abroad may compete. I believe the N.A.C.A. would not long survive under such circumstances. If the N.A.C.A. and its supporters over Ireland desire to be cut off from the rest of the athletic world, then we need not trouble further about flags, boundaries, or anything else. It is for Congress to say definitely to-day what the policy of the N.A.C.A. should be in this regard. You are either for isolation or you are not. No amount of bluff or empty platitudes can evade this issue.

Again, if the N.A.C.A. wants an association confined to the Irish Free State, there will be no trouble about flags, boundaries or anything else. The Free State as such will have international recognition without queston, but the N.A.C.A. will not be allowed to draw on a single athlete outside its territory—the proud title of "champions of Ireland" will be denied to our athletes, and in the Olympic Games and other international competitions our teams will be recognised as representing the Free State only. No amount of high-sounding words can compensate for such loss of national dignity.

Because he did not wish to see such a deplorable termination of their national athletic status, secured in 1924, General O'Duffy went on, he had worked hard since he was appointed president to retrieve that position. His ambition was to insure the participation of Ireland as an undivided unit in national and international athletic affairs, and in that he had succeeded.

FLAG DIFFICULTY.

UNABLE TO WORK MIRACLES.

Regarding the flag question, General O'Duffy, having quoted a letter which he had sent to the Central Council on the matter, said that he had been unable to convince the Northern Ireland Branch of the Amateur Athletic Association of England that they should fly the Tricolour at events under their auspices. Governments had failed to do this, and, being unable to work miracles, he, too, had failed. If the present Congress approved of the flag settlement, then all the terms of the settlement were approved. His view always had been that if they could not get absolute unanimity for any form of settlement as a result of their conferences with the North, the N.A.C.A. should allow the case to go to Los Angeles for final decision. Their Association was not strong enough to withstand internal dissension.

Referring to his resignation, General O'Duffy said that he appreciated the point of view of those who considered he had been too sensitive, and agreed that no man or organisation should be above criticism. If he could see any honesty of purpose behind it, or if a single practical suggestion had been made, or any alternative line of policy put forward, he would be only too happy to view the matter in a different light, but the members of the N.A.C.A. would agree with him when he said that the criticism was absolutely destructive. He accepted without reservation the apology which appeared in the Irish Press in regard to an article published in that journal. He regarded the disclaimer as honest and sincere. He took exception to a resolution of the Standing Committee of the Kerry County Board, and stated that he would be surprised if a single county board or club in Ireland, or a single athlete, would agree with that resolution. He would ask Congress to accept his resignation without further discussion.

THE POSITION TO-DAY.

"In some respects," he continued, "the position is not so difficult as when I assumed office. The financial problem is solved, all debts are paid, and there is a substantial balance on hands; many new county boards have been formed, and there is a considerable increase in the number of clubs; there is a keener interest manifested in athletics in the country generally, particularly in the schools and colleges; a decent headquarters has been secured; the Ulster problem and the difficulties to be confronted in solving it are now better understood; closer friendships have been established with athletic and cycling associations abroad, the Press is more helpful, and the advent of the Tailteann Games—all should tend towards advancement.

General O'Duffy added that, if Congress desired, he would be available to attend on short notice, after a President was elected, to explain any points not sufficiently clear to the delegates.

THE KERRY RESOLUTION.

Dr. O'Sullivan said that, as his name had been specially singled out in General O'Duffy's letter, he felt it his duty to reply to the allegations and mis-statements appearing in it. It was nothing short of a loose and irresponsible use of words to suggest any malice in the attitude taken up by the Kerry representatives towards the proposed settlement of the Ulster athletic dispute. Inasmuch as he was opposed in 1929, when President of the N.A.C.A., to the solution of the Northern question on the lines now proposed, it stood to reason that he would object in 1932.

Having referred to his views as expressed in his letter to the special Congress on the 28th June, 1931, Dr. O'Sullivan said that his treatment of the Northern dispute had always been to uphold the national position. It was their duty as a national body to recognise the national flag, and a compromise flag was only worthy of an organisation that was prepared to compromise itself.

LAST YEAR'S LOSSES.

General O'Duffy's reference to the "mess" he took over twelve months ago was characterised by Dr. O'Sullivan as a deliberate misrepresentation that was unworthy of any President of the N.A.C.A., and he said that the year 1930 was the best year witnessed by the Association since its inception, and was almost equalled by the previous year. A unique feature in 1930 was the fact that every single athletic function promoted by the Central Council was a financial success. What had been the corresponding position during the last twelve months? There was a loss of £500 in the normal working of the Association, though this had been glossed over by the large subsidy procured by the President. It was an incontrovertible fact that every single function promoted by the Central Council last year suffered a monetary loss (except the Scottish contest), culminating in the huge loss of £160 in the France v. Ireland contest.

Dr. O'Sullivan gave a brief history of the Northern dispute, and said that, before accepting the compromise solution now proposed, the Association should seriously weigh up all the consequences. Far from maintaining unity it would, he said, irrevocably split the Association into two parts, and it would renew the divisions in existence before 1922, when the G.A.A. stood for a national athletic Ireland. No matter what they might lose internationally regarding this Northern crux, their first duty was to the nation.

DELEGATES' VIEWS.

Dr. Sean Lavan, Connacht Council, said that he was entirely against the proposed settlement.

Mr. Fay (Cavan) said that he failed to see any loss of national dignity in the proposed settlement.

Mr. Kieran (Roscommon) expressed the opinion that they should take the flag of the four Provinces as their flag in this country.

Mr. Briggs (Down) said that for a satisfactory settlement the Union Jack and the tricolour would have to go, and there should be a flag that would satisfy all parties.

Mr. Ferguson said that the aim of the Association was the unification of Ireland in the sphere of athletics, and they wanted a flag thoroughly representative of all Ireland.

Mr. P. O'Connor (Waterford) said that they were up against a stone wall in Ulster, and he urged the congress to make concessions to prevent disunion that would send Irish athletes back into the wilderness for another twenty years.

GENERAL O'DUFFY'S ARRIVAL.

The congress decided to invite General O'Duffy to attend, and General O'Duffy subsequently arrived, and having outlined the discussions leading up to the proposed settlement, he denied that the Free State delegates had concealed anything from the public.

Answering Dr. O'Sullivan's charge, that there had been financial losses since he took over the presidency, General O'Duffy said that the losses were incurred deliberately on a re-organisation of athletics, and aimed to put Ireland on the map. (Applause.) He wanted the tricolour as the all Ireland flag, but he was not blind to the fact that under present conditions it would not be possible to have the tricolour flown at games in Portadown. Unless there was unity in the South of Ireland there would be no use in adopting the settlement, because there was going to be a Press campaign against it, and the congress would be held up as the Dermot McMurroughs of Ireland. He felt that what had happened within the last month sounded the death knell of the Association.

AGREEMENT APPROVED.

PRESIDENT WITHDRAWS RESIGNATION.

Eventually a resolution proposed by Dr. Rowlette was passed by 41 votes against 6 approving the agreement as set out in the proposals of the Belfast conference, with the proviso that the flag to be used for all international purposes be the tricolour.

A suggestion by Dr. Rowlette that the proposed terms of the settlement, with the proviso, be referred to the Belfast conference for ratification, was referred to the Standing Committee.

In regard to General O'Duffy's resignation the Chairman said that there was no doubt that they all desired to have General O'Duffy back with them to continue the great athletic revival which he had started in this country. There was no doubt that General O'Duffy had the athletes of the whole country behind him, and he asked him to re-consider his decision.

Dr. O'Sullivan said that he had sincere admiration for General O'Duffy, and he assured him that there was nothing personal in any criticism that he had made.

Several other speakers urged General O'Duffy to reconsider his decision to resign, and amid loud cheers General O'Duffy, having acknowledged the compliments paid to him, withdrew his resignation and took the chair, at which there was renewed applause.

It was announced that the National track, field and cycle championships would be held on the 18th and 19th of next June.

The remaining business on the agenda was referred to the Central Council.

DUBLIN MERCANTILE ASSOCIATION.

The annual report to be submitted to the fiftieth annual meeting of the Dublin Mercantile Association, Ltd., next Monday, shows that, after provision for all outgoings and charges, and for the usual depreciation of £25, there is a surplus on the year's working of £150 16s. 7d., which, added to the credit balance brought forward from the year 1930 of £149 6s. 2d., leaves a credit balance at the foot of revenue account at 31st December, 1931, of £300 2s. 9d. The number of members on the roll of the Association at the 31st December was 1,554.

In the debt department the previous high records were, in 1931, again surpassed, the report states, the amount recovered being £57,033 11s. 10d., an increase of £2,743 13s. 7d. over 1930. As a practical auxiliary to the trade and industry of the country, this department repeatedly manifested its worth, and supplied a highly successful intermediary between the efforts of members and the law courts in the recovery of debts due.

During 1931 the enquiry department received and answered the record figure of 24,924 special enquiries—3,300 more than the previous year. The search department was of great assistance to members. The registers of the Association continued to prove a real mine of information. The entries numbered many hundreds of thousands, and a search gives a member the latest information recorded during the previous ten years.

LOURDES PILGRIMAGE.

The monthly meeting of the Irish Society of Our Lady of Lourdes was held in Dublin on Friday, when applications were considered from Dublin (4), Cork (5), and Newcastle West (1).

In view of the close approach of the pilgrimage season the Society asks that those intending to make the pilgrimage notify their intended dates, so that particulars can be communicated to the Hospitale and Aisle.

It was announced that more voluntary helpers are needed.

The appearance of two rainbows and three suns for a short time caused great alarm among the inhabitants of Sillein, in the Tatra Mountains, Czecho-Slovakia. The phenomenon was visible for over a quarter of an hour.

THE GORE CUP COMPETITION.

SMALL ENTRY OF CANDIDATES.

AWARDS AT FATHER MATHEW FEIS.

THE competitions for the Gore Cup and for Soprano Solo Voices in English were the features of the Father Mathew Feis on Saturday night. It was disappointing that there was not a bigger entry for the Gore Cup, which is the principal solo-singing item in the whole Feis. Candidates are simply asked to sing two songs of Irish character of their own choice. There is no sight test to act as a deterrent, but only four singers faced the adjudicator. Their singing was, on the whole, good, and the winner, with a little more attention to production and control, should do well on the public platform. The soprano solo class was quite good and provided an interesting competition.

SOPRANO SOLO (ENGLISH).

There were 13 competitors, the test-pieces being:—(a) "Fairy Waves" (D. McMorrogh), (b) "The Last Rose of Summer, (c) piece at sight—1st, Miss Nellie Byrne, 10 Hollybank avenue, Clonskeagh; 2nd, Miss Molly Madden, 464 North Circular road, Dublin; 3rd, Mrs. Baird, 12 Adelaide road, Dublin; highly commended, Miss Agnes Lynch, 55 North Strand road; Miss Claire Conway, St. Mary's Choir, Clarendon street, Dublin; Miss Aileen Doyle, St. Mary's Choir, Clarendon street, Dublin; Miss Eileen Kelly, 32 Oscar square, Dublin.

An excellent competition, said Mr. Weaving, in which they had heard fine singing by some of the competitors. Others, however, with fine voices, had spoiled the effect by throat restriction or faulty nasal tone. This latter he attributed to over-zealousness on their part to reproduce tones which they had heard on the gramophone, in the cinemas, or over the wireless. No matter how good was the reproduction through these mediums there was always what he called "a funnelly noise." He advised would-be singers to take note of the good points they heard in the way of phrasing and expression, but to leave the tone alone.

THE GORE CUP.

For voice production and interpretation of Irish songs, open to all voices. There were five entries, of whom only four competed.

Cup won by Miss Christina Doyle, St. Mary's Choir, Clarendon street, Dublin (92 marks); h.c., Mr. Leo E. Ryce, 50 Iona road, Drumcondra (88); Miss Victoria Coffey, Larch Hill, Rathfarnham (84), and Miss Peg Buttimer, 18 Oxford road, Ranelagh (82).

The adjudicator (Mr. Weaving) expressed regret that there were not more entries for this competition, which was a test for singing Irish melodies. If they could not manage here to sing Irish melodies he did not know who should sing them. He mentioned that when he was in England he found the Irish melodies very popular and well known, and yet at the Academy in Dublin he had come across students who could not write out the tune of the "Minstrel Boy" and other well-known Irish melodies. Surely, with the wonderful wealth of beautiful Irish melodies that they had, singers should take pride in learning and singing them. They had glorious settings.

Poor Tom Moore had been blamed for spoiling a lot of these airs, but they should remember that it was Moore's poems which brought these melodies to the notice of the English-speaking world. Moore had been accused of altering some of the tunes, but they should remember that at the time there was in use only the major and minor modes, and the bards had composed their old songs to tunes set in the Church modes. They had not written music for these, and Moore, by using the minor, sought to set these airs to music to which the people were accustomed. What he had done was all to the good. However, Stanford and other arrangers had now virtually brought back the original tunes.

To have four competitors only for this competition did not augur too well. He thought it strange that they should have had thirteen entries for the English soprano solo event, and so few for a contest for singing of their own Irish songs. He hoped to find a larger entry next year.

The winner of the Cup (Miss Chrissie Doyle) had given an excellent performance. Her singing of "When Thro' Life" had been beautifully phrased, and the expression was admirable. Then she had not tried to sing the other song, "I Know Where I'm Going," at a ridiculous pace, but had preserved a nice rhythm, and got the words and message of the song clear. It was an excellent piece of work.

The young man who was second would have done much better if he could have forgotten himself and thrown himself into the songs.

IRISH DANCING.

One of the most interested spectators of the Irish dancing competitions at the Father Mathew Feis in Dublin yesterday was Mr. J. F. McCarthy, a former president of the Transvaal Irish Association, who for a number of years has been helping to foster Irish culture in South Africa.

The practice of Irish traditional dancing is only in its infancy in South Africa, and Mr. McCarthy told an Irish Times representative that he had been impressed by the ease with which children at the Feis performed it. "In South Africa," he said, "it is considered difficult, but here it is evidently part and parcel of their being."

"One thing I have learned," he added, "is that we have always made a great mistake in using the piano for accompaniment. Fiddling is the only appropriate music, and when I say fiddling I mean fiddling as distinct from violin playing. It is an art in itself, and even the great masters of the violin could not do it properly."

The dancing competitions included the senior championship, which attracted eleven entries, and the junior championship, for which there were eighteen, as well as special competitions for adults. A feature of the entries was the small number of males.

WEEK-END RESULTS.

The Feis will continue to-night with the junior contest in dramatic art, and the plain chant competition will be decided to-morrow.

Results during the week-end were as follows:—

FIGHTING AGAIN IN MANCHURIA.

REBELS AGAINST NEW REGIME ROUTED.

DILATORY NEGOTIATIONS AT SHANGHAI.

SEVERE fighting has broken out in Manchuria, and trouble threatens on the Korean frontier, where the Chinese, Japanese, and Russian Empires meet; while at Nanking General Tsai Ting-Kai declared to Reuter's Correspondent that if the Japanese renewed their offensive in hopes of securing more favourable armistice terms he would resist to the last man and the last bullet.

The latest Reuter despatch from Changchun, the new capital of Manchuria, states that in the fighting to the north-west of that city the rebels have been completely routed, and are in flight to the north-west of Nungan, thirty-five miles away, which has been captured by the Japanese troops co-operating with Chang Hai-Peng's Kirin forces.

The combined Japanese-Manchow Kuo offensive was for the purpose of dislodging a so-called anti-Kirin force of 3,000 men, which had established itself in Nungan two days ago with the object of making a drive to overthrow the new Manchurian régime.

A serious situation has developed also in the Chientao district, near the north-east frontier of Korea, says a message from Pingyang, Korea. A number of scouters and fighting 'planes left there yesterday morning to co-operate with the troops despatched on Saturday to fight the anti-Kirin troops there. The lives and property of thousands of Koreans are threatened by this new development, adds the report.

WHITE RUSSIANS.

Thousands of Korean and White Russian refugees are stated to be already crossing the Tumen River from Manchuria into Korea, it continues.

Rumours of war continue to circulate in the Shanghai area owing to the slowness with which the peace negotiations are proceeding.

General Tsai Ting-kai declared to Reuter's Nanking Correspondent that the success of the Shanghai Armistice Conference depended upon the sincerity of the Japanese army in fixing a time limit for the withdrawal of their troops. It could not depend upon Japanese bargaining over the points to which they should withdraw. Unless a time limit was fixed the Conference was doomed to failure.

This new threat to the preliminary truce agreement may be discounted to some extent, since it is made by the commander of the famous 19th Cantonese Army, who is probably still flushed with his stout resistance to the Japanese.

Meanwhile a strong protest has been sent to Japan against the detention by the new Manchow-Kuo Government of the Customs and salt revenues of Antung and Yingkow, which is attributed to Japanese influence.

A loan to the new Manchurian Government by three semi-official Japanese organisations has been approved by the Cabinet in Tokyo.

A NEWSPAPER SCARE.

MR. BOLAND AND THE CABINET.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
ROSCOMMON, Sunday.

A largely-attended meeting to celebrate the Fianna Fail victory in Roscommon was addressed by Messrs. G. Boland and D. O'Rourke, T.D.'s, and Dr. O'Dowd.

Mr. Boland stated that the newspapers had published a number of scares of the trouble that existed in the Fianna Fail Cabinet—trouble with the Empire and trouble with England. These scares were only newspaper scares.

Speaking on the question of the Oath, Mr. Boland said that it was a domestic question. The Fianna Fail Party was making the minimum demand that Republicans could make—that there should be no Oath of Allegiance for the people's representatives in the Dail. The Fianna Fail policy meant that, with the removal of the Oath, there would be a number of new parties, and if the people returned any of these parties in a majority they should be free to take up the reins of office. But, if a party could only gain four or five seats, that party should take the place which their number of seats entitled them to take. There would be freedom for the people to express their opinion through the ballot-box, but no minority would be allowed to dictate to the majority of the people.

THE ANNUITIES.

Dealing with the land annuities, Mr. Boland stated that the Government meant to retain the annuities until the other side could prove their right to them. Certain newspapers had stated that Mr. de Valera was an autocrat, and that the Dail should be called together to deal with the matter. The people a month ago decided this matter.

The Fianna Fail Party promised at the recent election to effect economies, but the people need not expect much economies by way of reductions in salaries. The Government hoped to economise by reorganising the different departments. The party stated that the oath would be removed, industries revived, and protection given to the farmers. This programme the Government would carry out, but it was going to take some little time.

Mr. D. O'Rourke and Dr. O'Dowd also addressed the meeting.

In 1875 he entered his father's firm, Messrs. West and Son, jewellers and silversmiths, Grafton street, Dublin, and worked in the business which has been in the family for more than 200 years. In his younger days Mr. Langley West was a well-known sportsman, and his son, Captain West, is prominent in golfing circles at the present time.

He married the eldest daughter of the late Major David Ruttledge, of Barbersfort, Tuam, Co. Galway. He served as surgeon during the South African war and volunteered for the Great War. He held appointments in Milford and Glenties, Co. Donegal, and came to Tuam in 1905.

FIANNA FAIL IN DUN LAOGHAIRE.

VOTERS ASKED TO ORGANISE.

ANOTHER ELECTION THIS YEAR.

AT a Fianna Fail "victory" meeting in the Town Hall, Dun Laoghaire, on Saturday night, at which Messrs. S. Brady, T.D., and O. Traynor, T.D., spoke, Mr. Eoin P. O'Keeffe, chairman, said that at the last general election the Republican vote was nearly 50 per cent. stronger than at the previous one, but that was not sufficient. They should, at least, have got another candidate in. In advising the voters to organise and secure their votes for the next general election, he said that there was every likelihood that there would be another general election before the year was out.

AN ENGLISH "GAME OF BLUFF."

Mr. Sean Brady, T.D., said that the Fianna Fail Government intended, as soon as possible, to give effect to their election promises. In regard to the oath position, he was sure that every decent-minded Irishman and woman praised Mr. de Valera for the dignified stand that had at last been taken. Mr. de Valera had spoken to the head of the English people in this regard just as the President of any nation would speak to the head of another nation, with dignity and without craving or crawling. People could see that it was only by adopting such an attitude that they could be restored to their proper manhood, which had been lost under English rule.

Mr. de Valera had told them that his goal was none other than the object of Padraig Pearse and the men of 1916. They had made no secret of the fact that final victory would not be won until the flag of the Irish Republic was floating over every county in Ireland. The game that was being played to-day by some English leaders and their newspapers was merely a game of bluff. They were trying to disunite the Irish people again and shake their confidence in Mr. de Valera.

DENIAL OF A CRISIS.

Mr. Oscar Traynor, T.D., said that he was satisfied that the members of the Executive Council in the new Government were the best team that any country could have to manage its affairs. Agriculture, fisheries and the Gaeltacht would be developed as they should have been developed from the first, and any delay that would take place would not be the fault of the new Government, but of the wrong and misdirected efforts of Mr. Cosgrave's Government. They were faced at the present moment with something which some people were pleased to call a crisis. It was a crisis which existed only in the minds of the English people, who had raised it. There was no crisis. Part of the policy of Fianna Fail was to remove the objectionable oath. That was made clear before the election. They had secured a mandate, and were going to clear the oath out of the way. He could see no crisis, and was satisfied that most English statesmen would see no crisis, and, therefore, the oath would go.

On legal grounds alone he was satisfied that they could keep the land annuities and use that £3,000,000 annually for the benefit of the people of this country. He had no doubt in his mind that Eamonn de Valera was now going to lead the Irish people to ultimate freedom.

Mr. Traynor said that he sincerely hoped and believed that the time had gone for ever when any Irishman would be called upon to hold arms against a fellow-Irishman, or against any other man, in the cause of Irish freedom.

Mr. Jos. MacCarthy, barrister, also spoke.

THE AMERICAN MARKETS.

RAILS UNDER PRESSURE: HEAVY CLOSE.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.)
NEW YORK, Saturday.

The Stock Exchange was easy at the opening to-day, with the market under much restraint owing to the developments in Washington and with commission house advices generally of a gloomy nature. Moreover, in the absence of any stimulating news there seems to be nothing to encourage a rally, and a protracted period of quiet trading is anticipated.

The market subsequently became fairly active, with selling converging on Railroad issues, and the price averages penetrated to new low levels for the third consecutive day. Pressure relaxed, however, in the late trading when short covering reduced the declines.

There was little fresh in the news to influence the market. Brokers are still depressed regarding the proposed stock transfer tax, and some of them intimate that they might have to go out of business.

The slump in Rails was attributed chiefly to uncertainty in connection with the holding up by the Inter-State Commerce Commission of its approval of a loan by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for the purpose of paying off maturing bank notes.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Saturday.

On the grain markets to-day values advanced on good overnight business, together with a report indicating a 5 per cent. increase in the French foreign wheat quota, while it is expected that there will be a further revision of the Italian and German quotas. Prices continued to improve on exporters buying, while a generally better feeling was influenced by an improved foreign interest and lighter offerings. Covering by shorts also helped the rise. Wheat advanced on foreign and S.W. buying, together with numerous reports of damage to the crops and news of an absence of beneficial rains. Reports of sandstorms in parts of Nebraska and Colorado, coupled with aggressive buying by local interests and commission houses, also helped the upward movement. During early dealings maize declined owing to selling by commission houses, poor support and liquidation. Prices later rallied in unison with wheat, but the unfavourable cash situation retarded any further advance. Rye strengthened on a good cash demand, coupled with fair export sales, while oats prices were influenced by the fluctuations in maize.

MANCHESTER MARKET REVIEW.

RISE IN IRISH BACON.

(FROM OUR COMMERCIAL CORRESPONDE

Business has been slow to recover the holidays, and there have been features of interest to note in the provi trade during the past week. The ba market, however, rules firm on reduced ings of bacon pigs on the Continent, cou with reports of a possible strike of wor in the Danish bacon factories. During past week killings of bacon bigs in Denm totalled 129,404, a decrease of 4,782; Swe 6,460, decrease 3,006; Dutch 12,148, incr 70; Polish 25,260, increase 260; and Lit anian 5,095, decrease 6,774, or a to decrease of 14,232. At the weekly mee of the Bacon Committee no official ch was recorded in Continental cures, but Iri showed an advance of 4s. per cwt. In the Danish official quotation has again be wired unchanged, and "top" still st at 170 kroner per 100 kilos; at the corre sponding period of last year the figure 205 kroner, and 1930 262 kroner. A fai though not brisk, demand was reported both Continental and Colonial makes, an late rates are generally well maintained. Spot supplies of eggs are confined to Iri and the home-produced article, and a fai clearance has been effected at steady price According to official returns for the mont of February, with the exception of bac and frozen beef, receipts of all the princip descriptions of meat were lighter on the yea In the case of bacon, imports continue be heavy, and during February were 6,000 tons more than at the corresponding perio of last year, due to increased receipts fro Denmark and other Northern Europ sources.

BUTTER IMPORTS LARGER.

Imports of butter, which have also be heavy during recent months, showed increase of 6,000 tons, or 20 per cent. o year. Of this increase Australia provid the bulk, consignments from that Domini reaching 11,600 tons, against 6,100 to February, 1931. Receipts of cheese we somewhat below the average, while impor of margarine continued on a very reduc scale. Arrivals of condensed milk rose appre ciably on the year, and in the case of t unsweetened variety the imports during February were more than double the average. Although supplies of eggs were larger th the low total recorded in January, the showed a reduction of 222,000 great hundre on the year, changes among the differen sources of supply being numerous. The Irish Free State, China, the Netherlands, Poland and South Africa all sent less th in February, 1931; while, on the other hand, larger quantities arrived from Denmark, Belgium, Egypt, Sweden, France and Aus tralia. Receipts of potatoes, although und half those of the previous month, continue to be far heavier than in former years.

CATTLE TRADE.

As is usual at holiday times, a fairly sub stantial decrease was reported in supplies of fat cattle, sheep and lambs at the Manchester Cattle Market, but with a slow trade prices were, if anything, on the easy side. At the Manchester Pig Market demand was also of a holiday character, but with short supplies the market was firm, with choice baconers realising rather more money. At the Manchester Dead Meat Market business opened quiet, but there was a good finish, home-killed being fairly well cleared at firm figures. Imported also ruled steady.

Dead poultry has generally quietened down after the Easter demand, chickens and ducklings both being obtainable at lower figures. Irish salmon shows a sharp decline as compared with last week, and is now quoted at 1s. 6d. per lb. (wholesale).

(SPECIAL REPORT.)

Dull business again prevailed in the hide market, with business restricted, and prices still displaying an easy tendency. Frigorifics were in poor request, with Argentine second ox sold at 4d. Little interest was displayed in miscellaneous hides, and prices were steady to the turn easier. B.A. Americanos sold at 6d., and dry first Capes at 5½d. Although there has been no definite expansion in the demand for sole leather, the outlook is considered to be more promising, as, although stocks generally are very heavy, the prices asked are very reasonable, and inquiries have been more numerous during the past few days. Repairing bends were in slightly better request, with a fair inquiry for heavy bends. The market for offal and rough leather remained quiet and unchanged. Upper leathers were in moderate demand, there being a fair inquiry for box and willow calf, and there was more doing in patent than of late. Reptiles attracted more attention, and prices generally ruled steady.

DEDICATION BY DR. GREGG.

Various additions at Enniskerry Church, which recently had its spire renovated and its interior re-decorated, were dedicated at Morning Service yesterday by Dr. Gregg, the Archbishop of Dublin.

The additions include a new pulpit and Holy Table, the former being the gift of Lord Powerscourt as a memorial to his father and mother. It was the late Lord Powerscourt who gave the site for the building of the church, and he laid the foundation stone on the day upon which he came of age.

Preaching afterwards on the significance of Easter, the Archbishop said that people had been too much in the way of thinking that a mere death was necessary, that the demands of God's justice required a penalty, that a life should be taken. Whatever benefit was obtained for the world upon the Cross, however, depended entirely upon whom the person was.

While He lived Christ could not penetrate into the hearts of other men—only by dying was He able to do that, and His death was the means by which the livingness with which He was filled was set free to flow out of Himself into others.

A SMART TWO-YEAR-OLD.

DOREDA WINS FROM A BIG FIELD AT NAAS.

THE second meeting of the season at Naas provided visitors with some very interesting racing, but it was a pity that the three miles steeplechase should resolve itself into the dimensions of a match. There were some heavy showers of hail, but, on the whole, the weather was not bad, and the attendance was satisfactory.

The principal race was the Kingsfurze Plate, for two years old, and this was won in good style by Mr. Fred Clarke's Doreda, a filly by Roidore out of Maqueda. The dam of the winner is also the property of Mr. Clarke, who rode her home to victory in many hurdle races some years back. Black Wings, the favourite, though running well, was never showing up as a likely winner in the closing stages, and it was Jackdaw's Favour who gave most trouble to Doreda. A filly that ran really well was Captain D. Rogers's Cordon Rouge, who should not be long about winning a race.

FAVOURITES FARE BADLY.

It was, on the whole, a bad day for favourites, and in the very opening race an amount of money was lost when Bread Fruit failed to justify his position in the market for the Springfield Handicap. He was well beaten by Mr. Gould Shaw's La Sorciere, a daughter of Kirk Alloway, who on Monday last at Mallow finished second to Sol de Terre, who was conceding her 2st. 7lb., and the form goes to show what an outstanding horse Sol de Terre is. Song O' My Heart finished within two and a half lengths of La Sorriere, and was by no means disgraced in doing so, since he was trying to concede 23lb. to the winner. Another reverse awaited backers over the Fishery Plate, for which Mr. T. J. Taaffe's Lisallen was a strong favourite. This produced a stirring finish between Ellerton and Giane, and the former prevailed by a head, thanks in the main to the handling of the winner by F. Gardner. Not that any fault could be found with Giane's jockey, F. Field, who used to be an apprentice at Wootton's stable, and is now with Mr. H. M. Hartigan. at the Curragh.

PROMISING STEEPLECHASERS.

To add to backers' troubles, Drummond, when looking all over a winner of the Novices' Steeplechase, bolted at the second last fence. It then looked as if Money Order would win, but he failed to stay as well as the other four-year-old, Charming Prince, owned by Mr. J. Dawson, whose colours are not too often prominent nowadays. Charming Prince is a promising young steeplechaser, as is Money Order, and both should earn winning brackets in the near future.

Jerboa, a daughter of Spion Kop and Dormouse, won the Maudlins Plate for Mr. L. Ward in easy style, and was ridden by Mr. T. W. Dreaper, who, owing to illness, has not been riding for some time past. Princess Mir carried her Fairyhouse penalty successfully against Zag in the Stand Steeplechase. Details:—

STAYERS' TEST.

ANGEL PAVEMENT MAY WIN THE SPRING HANDICAP.

THERE will be plenty to interest racing followers during the coming week, but it opens quietly to-day at Warwick, where the Spring Handicap tops the card The class of entrants for this is rather lower than usual, but a well fought out contest should be seen. Pard, the top weight, won his first race last season, but subsequently did not meet with much success. On his best form, however, he has a good chance, and should finish in front of Salt of the Earth and Norland. Angel Pavement, who finished second in this event last year, is now back at her best, and expected to run prominently She found Sterling Boy and Saphir far too good at Lincoln, but should be better for the outing.

Bestobell is well fancied, but he has little chance on his record last year, when he failed to win a race. His hurdling experience this year should have done him good, and I expect him to make a bold show. Silver Castor is only moderate, but in this company should go close, while Sterling Maiden is not without a chance. What Joy is on the small side, but ran fairly well last week in a race won by Potchim. Manvero is fit, but I shall support

ANGEL PAVEMENT.

Frank Butters holds a strong hand in the Kineton Plate with Elenoir and Oyar Khayyam engaged, and the selected should go close. Stage Door was narrowly beaten by Coroada and Magic Glove at Liverpool, and will be better for the experience, but my vote goes to who dead-heated with Maranon colt last time out.

Don McSweney and Light and Airy will be fancied starters for the Southam Selling Plate, and my preference is for

LIGHT AND AIRY.

Sophocles, the Newcastle winner, appears to be penalised out of the Guy Selling Plate, and I shall select who should improve on his forward Birmingham performance. Helen Summer, who ran unnamed as the Magheen filly last year, may be the danger to my selection.

One of the best handicapped horses in the Shorts Plate is Royal Ulster, and if he is at his best he will be a very difficult proposition to beat. Serafina, who won a number of races last year, should beat Vincent, Rushall Down and Song of Love, but I select

ROYAL ULSTER.

Hurry Brian will be backed for the Castle Plate, but after his poor Leicester performance I shall pas him over. Colorado Kid has a chance, but may win.

ENGLISH RACING TOPICS.

CAMERONIAN'S NEXT RACE : JACOPO AND THE JUBILEE : ORWELL'S OUTING

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Sunday Night.

NOW that the rain has come it has developed a tenacious habit and never leaves us. Unless there is a sudden change, of which there is no sign, plans with regard to some important horses engaged this week may not be carried out as intended.

For instance, it is at present arranged that Cameronian shall have his first race since the St. Leger in the Lingfield Park Spring Stakes on Wednesday next, but if the going is heavy—and it can be heavy at Lingfield—Fred Darling is hardly likely to run him with 9st. 9lb. The race was chosen for him as likely to be an easy one because Brown Jack on a fast straight mile can hardly be regarded as a formidable opponent for the Derby winner.

Everyone will be particularly interested to see Cameronian again. It is not as if he had been retired for the season at the apex of his success. He retired under circumstances which cause the legitimate speculation whether he has forgotten that disastrous day at Doncaster when he ran himself literally to a standstill on the Town Moor, a victim partly of his own nerves and partly of an inherent lack of stamina.

QUESTION OF STAMINA.

I am assured that the colt has done well physically ever since Doncaster, and it is much to be hoped that the St. Leger has left no mark on him and that he will this season live up to the high tradition of a winner of the Derby. He was unquestionably a very good colt last season, when at the top of his form, up to a mile and a quarter. He won the Derby over the extra quarter of a mile, but it was an opinion formed then that in the last furlong he was rapidly coming to the end of his tether.

One can, therefore, suggest that if he is at his best on the day of the Eclipse Stakes nothing will be able to live with him, and it is quite likely too that he may win the Coronation, a mile and a half, at Epsom if it is run to suit him.

Mr. Singer's brilliant colt of last season, Orwell, has been left in the Greenham Stakes, the first of the more or less important three-year-old races of the year, to be run at Newbury on Friday. As a rule this is a most misleading race, which seldom tells us anything useful. It is a possibility that Orwell may be started, though all will depend on the conditions. He has an engagement at the Craven meeting in the following week at Newmarket which will suit him as well as or better than the Greenham.

EXPECTATIONS OF ANDREA.

The Manton stable also has in the Greenham Stakes a colt called Andrea, who only ran three times last back-end and was never placed. I believe, however, that it was expected that this son of Solario, who was not seriously trained last year, would prove himself a good one in his second season. His late owner, Sir John Rutherford, certainly believed that in Andrea he had a better colt than Orpen, who was second in the Derby and St. Leger.

Andrea is to be sold with the rest of Sir John Rutherford's horses, so his future career is obscure. Even supposing that he is bought by a foreign buyer, it is likely that his new owner will not deny himself the pleasure of seeing him run in the Derby, even if he does take him out of the country later.

One hears a good deal of discussion on the possible price that Solario himself will make when he comes up, and the figure mostly mentioned is in the neighbourhood of £30,000. It is understood that one reputedly rich owner, who is forming a stud farm, is determined to buy him.

Reverting again to Cameronian, he has not been accepted with for the Great Jubilee Handicap at Kempton Park, where he had been given 9st. 7lb., nor has Goyescas or Leading in Mr. L. Ward's Jerboa, winner of the Maudlins Plate at Naas last Saturday.

Sir Andrew. Jacopo has, however, been left in, and he has now the distinction of being joint top weight. Captain Boyd Rochfort has also left in last year's winner, Racedale. I imagine that, if Jacopo is the colt that he was believed to be twelve months ago, he could win this race, and that this view will be generally accepted and reflected in the betting

ALL THE SUPERLATIVES.

It is far too early yet to think of taking a price about him, for I doubt whether his trainer has made any definite plans for him. He will want to see first how the colt stands a period of strong work. At present all the superlatives are being used about his work, and he is said to be going like a lion and rooting up the Newmarket Heath. Some of these horses who root up their own downs only root up the foundation of a bank account when they come on a racecourse.

I hope and believe, however, that this will not prove true of Jacopo, who is a real good colt when he is right, and will doubtless show it this season. If he should not contest the Jubilee, Racedale can be a useful stable substitute.

By the way, I shall be interested to see Racedale's half-brother by Colorado, Loaningdale, in his races before the Derby; for, backward and unfurnished as he was last season, he suggested on occasions that there might be classic possibilities about him.

Link Boy, who is on the same mark as Jacopo, rather spoiled a fine reputation of last year at the back-end. Hill Cat is another interesting possibility in this race with 7lb. less than Jacopo. His record of last season stands close inspection, and I think he will show himself to be a good four-year-old.

JACOPO WELL HANDICAPPED.

Double Arch, quite well handicapped here, for once, is also a possibility, and so is Vamos, who was coming on last back-end. I think, however, that if Jacopo is saddled with the confidence of his trainer nothing will touch him, as he is wonderfully well handicapped for a colt of his class.

We may possibly see Vamos in the Newbury Spring Cup on Saturday next, but the indications are that the public will go mad over Dooley, and that he will start at a very short price. There is ample precedent for regarding Dooley as a likely winner; for it is surprising how many horses that have been placed or done well in the Lincolnshire have found compensation in this race. Condover, Orbindos, Athford and The Masher last season are cases in point.

One thing I am determined not to do, and that is take a false price about Dooley. It was perfectly clear at Lincoln that a light-weight jockey could not get the best out of him, and he has only 6st. 7lb. to carry on Saturday. I would like his chance at least as well if Mr. Boydie Davis, who is nothing if not unconventional, took his courage in both hands and declared a monstrous overweight for the services of a strong jockey.

Pricket is to run for this race, and should have a chance if he gets the distance, and Philas is another about whom there are possibilities.

AT ALEXANDRA PARK.

It was cold and moist for the moderate sport at Alexandra Park yesterday, where the most notable hting was another victory on the course for the seven-year-old Auction Pool. This made his seventh victory on this course, and it made the sixth time that Harry Wragg had won on him here. He always seems to run a stone better horse at Alexandra Park than anywhere else. Spearwood was a strong favourite, and A. Smirke got the very best out of him, but he could not resist the strong challenge of Auction Pool, who was a clever winner by a neck.

De Mestre, who owns and trains Spearwood, had better luck in the Priory Selling Plate, where he ran two—Negro and St. Elmo. The former looked like being the better favourite, but St. Elmo, who was brought into the market around 5 to 1, speedily became a 5 to 4 chance. Ridden by the stable jockey, Ray, Negro made the running, but in the straight St. Elmo, on whom de Mestre's apprentice, Hudson, had the mount, came and won by a length from Eyebright.

Decadence II., who had failed at Nottingham, was trusted again in the Three-Year-Old Handicap, and started favourite, but he did very little better than in the previous week, and was beaten two lengths and a head by Mountaway and Marchia. This winner, who was excellently ridden by A. Burns, made another for Lord Harewood and the Egerton House stable.

WON BY A NECK.

Sir Victor Sassoon, who owns Decadence, and Donoghue, who rode him, had a winner in the course of the afternoon. This was Circular Saw, by his owner's young sire. Prestissimo, who took the Juvenile Selling Plate. There was a hot favourite for this race in the Mohur colt, from the stable of Ted Gwilt, but he weakened in the last furlong, and Donoghue won cleverly by a neck from Annuity on Circular Saw, who was afterwards sold to Wootton for 370 guineas.

Coronach has had a very limited number of winners so far, but he had one when Confession, from Larkin's stable, took the Enfield Plate by two lengths and a length from Bushranger and Sunday Face after starting favourite.

NEWMARKET NOTES.

FLYING ARGOSY'S PROGRESS. TO-DAY'S HINTS.

NEWMARKET, Sunday.

TRAINERS got through a good morning's work yesterday, and included in it was a trial brought off by Watson over five furlongs. Outrider, a son of Hurry On and Pillion, ridden by Perryman, beat Sea Trout (J. Childs) by three-parts of a length, Outlaw (F. Lane) being a head away third. Also in the trial were Almagest (H. Wragg), and Flodden (F. Rickaby) last. This is the first eye-opener Outrider has been given, and he is one that will continue on the up grade. Outlaw is one of the few that were coughing previous to Lincoln, and he is only now shaking off the effects, so that we may expect him to do better later on.

J. Jarvis has settled Sandwich into strong work. He had Boldero for a companion in a good mile and a half gallop, and he moved well throughout. Philander failed in his race at Kempton Park, but he will be all the better for that race, and his chance of winning the Spring Maiden Plate at Newbury is a good one. Kopke Roriz, his companion in a mile gallop, has run twice this season, and did very well at Kempton Park and Liverpool. These races have brought the son of Spion Kop and Daragh along nicely, and his chance for the Chiddingstone Maiden Stakes at Lingfield Park strikes me as a good one.

H. Wragg was on Lord Rosebery's colt, Miracle, and had a very comfortable ride in a fast seven-furlong spin with Wraxhall, Ellenborough, Wyvern, and Foxhunter (Jelliss). Miracle still continues to give satisfaction, and the well-being of Foxhunter has not escaped my notice. He figures in the Lingfield Spring Stakes on Wednesday, and I shall be prepared to see him make a bold bid to win that event. His last race, when third to Robber Chief and Spenser here, was a good one, and he finished second to Rooz at his previous attempt for the Alington Stakes.

I am watching the progress of Flying Argosy, who was not himself when he ran for the Lincolnshire Handicap. He moved well in a good seven furlongs' spin with Stonetoi and Fair Hazel, and we shall probably hear something of him in the Victoria Cup, as Powney will by that time have him in perfect condition.

A glance over Boyd-Rochfort's team showed that his charges are getting nic forward in condition, and great interest i centred in the progress that Loamingdale making. J. Childs was astride the son o Colorado and Perfection, and he impress in a good mile gallop with Sir Wal Raleigh, Rasedale and Pinacho (Dine Flange was Jacopo's companion in a m mile and a quarter gallop, in which he mov in his best style. Pahokee went well in good mile and a quarter gallop with Pra (Dines) and Corn Belt (J. Childs). Pahok has grown into a splendid four-year-ol He did well in winning five of his races la season, and unless my judgment is at fa the son of Spion Kop and Deocaun will w a nice long distance handicap.

D. Waugh's Victoria Cup horse, Barga with Ortygia and Hand of Glory, had a go seven-furlong spin. The first-named pair a making good progress, and will be fanc candidates for their engagements.

We shall not be very strongly represent at Warwick, and shall supply about a do runners to-morrow.

If we go strictly on their Kempton runni The Roumba should again beat Omar Khayyam for the Kineton Plate. Marylin filly well, but in the absence of Dinah Desm colt, should win.

THE ROUMBA

CHINKIE FILLY (next best)

runs for the Southam Selling Plate. Wh tried with The Roumba she was only beaten by the latter, and she should wi event.

NORLAND

was not thoroughly wound up when she at Liverpool. She has done well since, a may win the Warwick Spring Handicap.

A moderate animal is

ALLAN'S WHIN,

but he is handicapped as such in the G Selling Plate, and should at least gain place. If only doing her best the judg would have the number of put up first for the Shorts Plate.

Mouchon, Wild Vixen, Straniero and are well for the Castle Plate. The la named pair have been well tuned up, and shall decide in favour of Gilpin's charge.

GREYHOUND RACING.

THREE IN A GREAT FINISH.

EXCITING RACING AT SHELBOURNE PARK.

THERE was a large attendance at Shelbourne Park on Saturday night, and the racing was keen and interesting. The Clounanna Bitch Stake, of 600 yards, was won by the consistent Merry Time, who led for the greater part of the journey, and was an easy winner from Reckless Rubia.

General Lee created a surprise by winning the Cloumel Stake, but it was only after a keen race with the favourite, Fatal Gossip, that he got there by two lengths. There was a thrilling finish in the Dublin Stake, which was won by Bitumen by a short head from Glenstal Foam, with Full Benefit only a neck away third, while another exciting race was that for the City Plate, the winner, Ettie's Fancy, only getting up in the last stride to win by a short head. Roving Martin and Springhall were clever winners of their respective hurdle events. Details:—

BECTIVE'S SEVENTH CUP.

U.C.D. HANDICAPPED BUT BEATEN BY A BETTER SIDE.

BECTIVE RANGERS.. 11 UNIV. COLLEGE... 3

BECTIVE RANGERS, by defeating University College in the final of the Leinster Senior Cup at Lansdowne road on Saturday, gained possession of the trophy for the seventh time since the inauguration of the competition in the season 1882. Their victory on Saturday was achieved by one goal and two tries to one penalty goal, and it was a success thoroughly deserved. The score, however, exaggerates the superiority of the winners; for, strange to say, the College had every bit as much of the play from the territorial point of view, but all the efforts of their backs were rendered futile by the deadly marking of the Bective men.

University College were certainly not in luck, and sympathy must be extended to them for the early loss of their clever forward, P. M. Purcell, who, midway through the opening half, had to be carried off the field suffering from concussion, and was unable to resume. This was a big handicap to the College side; but, despite this, the seven forwards, though out-weighted, played up in the most heroic fashion, and more than held their own, and particularly so in the second half. In this second period the students had much the better of play, and, had the backs been able to make full use of the opportunities which came their way, the Bective line must have been crossed on two occasions. McMahon, too, was dead out of luck in his place kicking, as he got several chances of landing penalty goals from comparatively easy positions, and was only successful on one occasion.

It was not a great final. The play was certainly interesting, but the game possessed few thrills, and it was by no means as exciting an encounter as was the game between the College and Wanderers. The conditions, of course, were not altogether in favour of brilliant back play, as the pitch in places was very greasy; but there is no doubt that the National backs, from whom much was expected, were definitely disappointing, and there was a noticeable lack of thrust in their attacks. The Bective backs, on the other hand, gave a surprisingly good display, and the three scores registered all came from movements behind the scrum.

J. A. Delany was the outstanding back on the winning side, and to him fell the distinction of scoring two tries, each of which was the culmination of a clever cut through. We have never seen the old Clongowes boy play a better game, and he was carried shoulder high off the field by supporters at the conclusion. F. B. Ievers, who played on the wing in place of Robinson, put in strong running, but the whole line was clever and resourceful. Desmond O'Connor played splendidly at out-half, while Fitzsimons was a hard worker at the base of the scrum. R. F. McCartan at full-back enhanced the high reputation which he has gained as a full-back. This young player gave a brilliant display in the last line of defence, and in every phase of the play was perfect, and this notwithstanding that he was fully tested.

The Bective forwards were in a sense disappointing, and though much the heavier were well held by their lighter and handicapped opponents. The veteran, Farrell, was always in the picture, and he was ably supported by Lalor, Carroll and McMurrogh.

The best work on the National side was done by the forwards, and it certainly was no fault of theirs that they did not win. Up to the time of his injury Purcell was always in evidence, while Hayes, Gleeson, Glynn and McAuley worked like Trojans. As already stated, the backs lacked thrust, and McMahon was one who did not come up to expectations. Bailey, too, was also below form, although he showed much resourcefulness in defence. Kiely and Phelan put in much strong running on their respective wings, while Roche did everything possible to try and turn the tide. Barry, as usual, proved to be a very hard worker, and there was a complete understanding between himself and Roche. Saurin was sound at full-back, but his work lacked the polish of his opposite, MacCartan.

The scoring opened twenty-five minutes after the start, and the tryqetter was Delany. Play was at the College "25," when O'Connor started a passing movement, and Delany, getting possession, burst right through the College defence. He was staggered by Saurin, but kept going on and scored, for Farrell to convert. Immediately afterwards Purcell was carried off, and a few minutes later the second score came when Desmond O'Connor short-kicked ahead, and dashing up dribbled the ball over the line for a try, but this time Farrell failed with the kick.

Play in the second half was much in favour of the students. Great work by the forwards kept the side on the offensive, but the backs were unable to pierce a strong Bective defence. McMahon was twice short with penalty kicks, while Kiely had a shot which he narrowly missed. At this stage the University were making desperate efforts, but they could not break through, and the game quickly swung to the other end. Here O'Connor opened out, and Delany with a splendid cut-through flashed past several defenders to score, but Farrell failed with the kick. In the closing stages the College fought back gamely, and just before the end McMahon landed a penalty goal. Teams:—

DUNDALK WIN TOWNS' CUP FOR FIRST TIME.

DUNDALK............... 7 LONGFORD.......... 0

Though they did not succeed in crossing their opponents' line, there was no question as to the superiority of Dundalk over Longford in the final of the Provincial Towns' Cup, played prior to the Leinster Senior Cup final, at Lansdowne road on Saturday. Their winning margin was made up of a dropped goal and a penalty goal, and this is the first time they have won the trophy.

Dundalk had very much the better of the play territorially, and up to a point their team work was above the average seen in these matches, but there was a slowness in execution which foredoomed their movements to failure. The slippery state of the ground and ball must also be taken into consideration. Collectively, their forwards were faster and cleverer, but the opposition fought back in fine style, and three or four individuals did great work in the loose and in tackling.

Dundalk were much better served at half, where W. Jennings and Riordan combined well, and were useful individually, but the former was inclined to overdo the short kick ahead, and owing chiefly to the steadiness of the Longford full, Duncan, nothing ever came of this manœuvre. The centres were slow at parting with the ball, but B. Jennings was at times resourceful, though finishing weakly. J. Jennings, at full-back, gave a stylish and very sound display. There was little attempt at combined play by the Longford backs, but they gave nothing away in defence. Duncan, at full-back, under pressure most of the time, was exceptionally sound in fielding and in positional play, but his kicking was short. Both centres tackled and kicked well.

Dundalk did nearly all the attacking in the first half, but without ever really threatening to cross their opponents' line. They had chances of scoring from free kicks, and J. Jennings twice sent wide from rather easy positions, but early in the second half he made amends by turning one to account, and near the end he dropped a clever goal. Result:—

Dundalk—1 dropped goal 1 penalty goal (7 pts.)
Longford—Nil.

Teams:—

Dundalk—J. Jennings; J. Riordan, F. Kelly, B. Jennings, C. Sheridan; W. Jennings, John Riordan; A. Halliday, P. Lenahan, F. Griffith, J. Duffin, E. Strath, G. Henry, J. Quinn, R. Cox.

SCORELESS DRAW IN THE MUNSTER CUP.

DOLPHIN .... 0 GARRYOWEN 0

Dolphin and Garryowen—last year's finalists—met at Cork on Saturday in the semi-final of the Munster Senior Cup, the game resulting in a scoreless draw. A large crowd was present, but the standard of play was disappointing, possibly owing to the heavy state of the ground. It was essentially a "forwards' day," and Dolphin might have done better by playing eight in the pack, instead of seven. As it was, there was little difference between the two teams.

Dolphin started off well and settled in their opponents' 25, from which position their backs got the ball on several occasions. C. Riordan, on the right wing, was nearly in after a nice passing movement. The Garryowen forwards then asserted themselves, and until the interval kept up continual pressure. A score nearly resulted from a misfield by the Dolphin full-back, and P. O'Sullivan, following up, only just failed to get the touch down.

The second half was uneventful, with practically no back play.

BOHEMIANS WIN MUNSTER JUNIOR CUP.

The Munster Junior Cup final was decided in Cork yesterday, Bohemians (Limerick) defeating Cork Constitution by the only score of the game—a try, secured for the visitors late in the second half by O'Brien. The game was marked by over-vigorous play amongst the forwards, and two Bohemians and one Constitution forward were sent to the sideline by the referee.

GOULDING CUP.

G.S.R. "B" .... 6 G.S.R. "A" 4

Two ties in the first round of the Goulding Cup were fixed for Park avenue on Saturday, and Irish Railway Clearing House gave a walk-over to Associates "A," while G.S.R. "B" team (Kingsbridge), the holders, beat G.S.R. "A" team (Inchicore) by two tries to a dropped goal.

A strong wind, laden with rain and sleet, prevailed at the start, and rendered handling difficult. The "B" team, aided by the breeze, attacked at the outset, and forced a touch down. Mullins and Floyd defended well for "A," who made an incursion after a quarter of an hour, but Linehan cleared, and "B," coming back, Rowlette gave to Ryan, who put Carter over far out, Rowlette's kick going low. The last-named then failed to drop a goal.

In the second period "A" went to the attack, and Wall put them ahead with a smart dropped goal. "B" were on the defensive for a time, but Rowlette and Veale relieved, and Holden, heading a rush, Rowlette scored at the left, but failed to convert. Ryan ran well, and "B" pressed, Carter and Rowlette in turn being pulled down on the line. Scrambling midfield play followed, and "A" were pressing at the close, but failed to score.

For the winners Donoghue, Carter, Ryan and Rowlette (backs), and Holden, Hennessy, Moir and Hanlon (forwards) were best, as were Wall, Finn Geddes and Banks (backs), and Mullins, Floyd, Foley and Griffen (forwards) for the "A" team. In the second round next Saturday Associates "A" meet L.M.S., and Associates "B" oppose G.S.R. "B" Teams:—

G.S. Railways "A" Team—A. Nuzum; J. Cullen, F. Finn, M. D. Wall (capt.), E. Dunne; J. Geddes, E. D. Banks; J. H. Mullins, C. T. Foley, J. Griffen, M. P. Floyd, J. Besant, T. Hayden, P. Groome, W. Broad.

ATHLETICS.

A FAMOUS RUNNER DISQUALIFIED.

PAAVO NURMI BANNED FROM OLYMPIAD.

BERLIN, Sunday.

Paavo Nurmi, the "Flying Finn," was to-day disqualified by the International Amateur Athletic Federation. Proof was put forward at the meeting that Nurmi had seriously transgressed the rules governing amateurism, and it was decided to disqualify him from taking part in any international meetings. The documents in the case have been sent to the Finnish Athletic Association for examination.

The case of Jules Ladoumegue, holder of five world's records, was also considered, and from the facts presented by the two French delegates there appears to be not the slightest chance of his being reinstated.

Thus have two potential winners at this year's Olympiad been eliminated, and Nurmi has lost his chance of achieving his greatest ambition—namely, that of winning the Olympic Marathon.

The I.A.A.F. has sent to its members a circular pointing out that only genuine amateurs are to be sent to the Olympic Games at Los Angeles, and that it has the authority to prevent any athlete from competing who does not fully conform with the definition of a pure amateur.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL.

ROVERS' SHIELD CHANCE.

FINE DISPLAY IN NEEDLE MATCH WITH CORK.

BY JAMES FORTUNE.

SHAMROCK ROVERS ..... 3 CORK 1

The important Shield game between Shamrock Rovers and Cork, played yesterday at Glenmalure Park, Milltown, ended in a victory for Rovers by 3 goals to 1, on a ground which, owing to the heavy rain which fell during the forenoon, made it very hard for the players to keep their feet. However, there was plenty of good football in evidence, and Cork had only themselves to blame for their defeat, as they had more of the play, but their inside forwards were very weak in front of goal. Rovers, with less of the game, took the chances that fell their way, and were deserving winners at the finish.

In defence there was little between the teams. Both McCarthy and Foley were good in goal, and all four backs played well, particularly McCloy and Daly. Rovers were rather the better at half-back, and their line has seldom given a better display this season. Matthews was in great form, his height coming in useful time after time in defence, and Glen and Kinsella were little behind him. Morgan, at centre-half for Cork, made some grand openings for his forwards, and also defended well, but the wing halves were not so sound as those of Rovers.

The home side was better in attack. The left wings, Smith and Ferguson, were outstanding for their respective sides, but while Smith got fine support from a lively line, all Ferguson's openings went to waste on account of the poor shooting of the inside men. After Smith, Byrne and Moore were the best of the Rovers' line.

THE PLAY.

Rovers were the first to become dangerous at the start, Smith centring finely after Kinsella had fired out a great pass, and, after Flood had shot wide, Byrne raced through, but failed badly, shooting wildly over the bar. However, keeping up the pressure, Byrne scored. Smith shot hard, and Foley dropped the ball, the Rovers' centre-forward being on the spot to put it into the net. Clever play by Paton was spoiled when he shot wildly past. Ferguson was a live wire on the Cork left-wing, and had the inside men been in position when he passed across the goalmouth, Cork must have equalised. Morgan headed inches wide from Ferguson's corner kick. McCarthy made two brilliant saves by diving at Ferguson's feet and prevented the Cork left-winger from scoring on each occasion, but Ferguson scored with a great drive shortly after to level the score.

Rovers changed their forward line formation in the second half, Moore taking the centre-forward position, Byrne going outside-right, and, in my opinion, it was a very wise move, as Moore was very dangerous on the resumption of play, sending Smith away with a neat pass. Foley, fisting the winger's cross over the bar for a corner, which was cleared. Clever play by Ferguson saw Smith shoot wide. Rovers took the lead when McMillan sent past Foley from Smith's cross. After Cork had been pressing Byrne took a pass from Moore and shot, Foley allowing the ball to go between his legs into the net to increase Rovers' lead. Cunningham should have scored easily in a Cork attack, but the centre-forward failed badly. Ferguson dribbled cleverly past the Rovers' defence, but shot wide. Cork were having nearly all the play, but owing to weak finishing could not beat McCarthy.

Shamrock Rovers—McCarthy; Hyland, Daly; Glen, Matthews, Kinsella; Moore, Flood, Byrne, McMillan, Smith.

Cork—Foley; O'Hare, McCloy; Richmond, Morgan, McLoughlin; Smith, Paton, Cunningham, Connolly, Ferguson.

BOHEMIANS' STAMINA TELLS.

BOHEMIANS............ 4 DRUMCONDRA... 3

At Dalymount Park on Saturday, White (2), Ebbs and Cullen scored for Bohemians; Sherwin, Farrell and Kavanagh for Drumcondra.

Bohemians, although not at their best, deserved their success. They were faster, and had more of the play than their opponents, while they lasted better in a game that was bright and dull in turn.

Seven goals does not by any means describe the number of scoring chances that accrued, for the match was remarkable for the number of missed opportunities.

Bohemians can attribute their success to open methods. They were not wholly a clever side, but their forwards, and particularly the wing men, were quick and speedy in approach work. Their margin of success would have been greater if the inside forwards had been active when clear openings were made from perfect passes from White. The latter was best of the line, with Ebbs generally an ineffective leader. O'Kane was Bohemian's best half-back. He tackled soundly, and was attentive to his forwards. McMahon was hard-working, but Kirby was unsteady. King gave a capital display at full-back, and was more reliable than McCarthy. Cannon was below form.

Drumcondra would have done better if their forwards had shown the vigour of the Bohemians. The inside men were slow, and their methods were too close. McCarney was not a leader in the best sense. The half-backs did well. Murray, a newcomer, was a sound player. He got through a tremendous amount of work, and was always looking for it when others were feeling leg weary. Pidgeon made several fine saves, and was blameless for the defeat. Both backs got through a lot of hard work capably, but on occasion were too easily flurried.

Bohemians—H. Cannon; F. King, J. McCarthy; P. O'Kane, J. McMahon, J. Kirby; P. Ellis, G. Cullen, G. Ebbs, W. Jordan, J. White.

Drumcondra—Pidgeon; Dunne, Moore; Kavanagh, Murray, Thomas; Delaney, Farrell, McCarney, Crofts, Sherwin.

HOGAN'S VALUABLE GOAL.

DOLPHIN .... 3 BRAY UNKNOWNS 3

Greater dash by the forwards enabled Bray Unknowns to take a point from Dolphin at Harold's Cross on Saturday, after a hard and exciting game, which lacked the finer points of play. Both sets of forwards found ball control difficult on a slippery pitch, and the halves and backs did not give them much assistance by hefty kicking and ill-judged passes. Dolphin were, in a sense, unlucky; for Unknowns' equaliser came in the last kick of the match; but the latter deserved their point for their persistence. The Dolphin defence, and Nisbet, in particular, was quite good; but the halves were not up to their usual clever form. The forwards, when they got going, were more dangerous than those of Bray, Paterson proving a fine raider, while the hard-working Stevenson was also in good form, and took his chances well.

Like their opponents, Unknowns' backs and halves were good and bad in turn. Kelly played a steady game, and Preston looked after Carroll well. Hogan, on the left wing, was the liveliest of the forwards, and sent over some fine centres, while Edwards, the new capture from Bedouins (Cheshire), should prove a useful acquisition.

Carroll opened the scoring for Dolphin from a centre by Reid that should have been cleared, but shortly after Hogan headed the equaliser. Stevenson put Dolphin ahead again with a fine drive, but near half-time Edwards equalised with a well-placed shot. A centre by Paterson enabled Stevenson to put Dolphin once more in the lead, but just on time Hogan equalised. Teams:—

Dolphin—Power; Nisbet, Doyle; Lee, Kelly, Watt; Reid, Stevenson, Carroll, Somers, Paterson.

Bray Unknowns—Paton; Chalmers, Kelly; Dorward, Preston, Moffat; Comerford, Ledwidge, Edwards, Buchanan, Hogan.

Referee—Mr. McClean (Belfast).

SHELBOURNE LEADER SCORES FIVE.

SHELBOURNE .... 7 JACOBS 1

At Shelbourne Park last Saturday. The scorers were Jones (5), Kendrick and Walsh for Shelbourne; Owens (penalty) for Jacobs.

Apart from the fine shooting of Jones, who beat the Jacobs defence almost at will, there was no feature of interest in the game. What little hope Jacobs possessed of putting up anything like a fight was dashed by the inability of regular players like Collins, Crowley and Kelly to turn out. Cooke made a few good saves, but could not withstand the almost incessant attacks of the Shelbourne forwards, particularly as the visitors' halves and full-backs were never able to render him any assistance.

Shelbourne, who had Lacey for Carroll at outside right, took matters easily at the start, and contented themselves by keeping off the infrequent attacks of Jacobs, and though Cooke got several early shots to deal with, it was not until after half-an-hour's play that Jones put in their first goal. Cooke was at fault later when, following a shot by Kendrick, he fumbled the ball, which fell from his hands into the net.

In the second half Jacobs were seldom out of their own territory, and, after Walsh—who appeared to be off-side—had netted Shelbourne's third, Jones put on four more. The Shelbourne defence was never really extended, while the forwards displayed a considerable amount of cleverness in some of their passing movements.

Shelbourne—Dunne; Lennox, Byrne; Kendrick, Duffy, Thomas; Lacey, Walsh, Jones, Paterson, Cameron.

Jacobs — Cooke; Ronan, Farrell; Griffin, Corcoran, Heron; Curry, Ward, Owens, Carlisle, Hickey.

GATE PUT UP A GOOD FIGHT.

DUNDALK .... 4 ST. JAMES'S GATE ... 2

Football was fast and keen at Dundalk when St. James's Gate provided the opposition, the home team winning 4-2. The visitors started off in great style, but after five minutes Dundalk took command and only a splendid defence, in which Kavanagh and Hoey were outstanding, kept them out. In twenty minutes the full-backs stood appealing for offside as Smith chased a pass from Reed. The referee waved the forward on and Smith beat O'Reilly in a race for possession and shot into an empty net. Ten minutes later Hirst took a corner kick, well placed by Kelly, and scored Dundalk's second goal. Just before the interval Foley scored a great goal for the Gate when he shot from twenty yards to beat Lewis all the way.

In the second half Smith added two more goals for Dundalk, and T. Murray scored for the Gate.

Dundalk—Lewis; Brown, McDiarmid; Patton, Harrison, Reed; Kelly, McCourt, Smith, Hirst and Donnelly.

St. James's Gate—O'Reilly; Hoey, Kavanagh; Tynan, McKay, R. Murray; Kennedy, Comerford, Foley, J. Murray, W. Murray.

CITY CUP HOLDERS BEATEN.

The defeat of the City Cup holders, Belfast Celtic, by Glenavon at Lurgan seriously jeopardises their chances of retaining the trophy, for both Derry City and Glentoran won their matches, and the former have a lead of three points and Glentoran two points over the Celtic team. Derry City, who are unbeaten, defeated Portadown by three goals to nil at Derry, and Glentoran, also at home, beat Coleraine by a similar score. Distillery, who have not won a match in the competition, lost at home to Linfield, who won 4-2, and Cliftonville's defensive mistakes gave Ballymena victory by 3 goals to 2 over the amateurs. Glenavon's triumph over Celtic by 5 goals to 2 was the surprise of the day, for the Lurgan side had not been playing well recently. Larne got the better of Bangor by 5 goals to 3, and Ards accounted for Newry Town by 4 goals to 1.

GAELIC GAMES.

TWO HARD-FOUGHT GAMES.

FAUGHS' EFFORT JUST FAILS.

(By PAT'O.)

YOUNG IRELANDS. 4-2 FAUGHS............ 2-2

After an exciting game in the County Championship at Croke Park yesterday, Young Irelands beat Faughs by 4-2 to 2-2. A late rally by Faughs nearly enabled them to pull off the game when they appeared well beaten, but Young Irelands' youth and speed told in the end. Hough, showing great pace on Young Ireland's left wing, opened the scoring with a goal. O'Meara, Quirke and Delaney were kept busy defending for Faughs, but Byrne added to the score with a point following a clever pass by Bruton. Hough was a clever opportunist, and scored a second goal, and then some fast work by John Walsh paved the way for Faughs' first point by Gleeson. Shortly after half-time Hough scored Young Irelands' third goal when he doubled Dunne's centre into the net. Then Faughs made their effort, and James Walsh worked right across the pitch to score their first goal, O'Donoghue adding a second shortly after, while Quade got a point. Gleeson should have brought the scores level, but missed an easy chance, and O'Brien put on Young Irelands' fourth goal just on time.

O'TOOLES........ 0—5 PARNELLS........ 0—5

O'Tooles were below full strength, and were two points behind at half-time. Devine, O'Mahony and Nolan were Parnells' scorers, and O'Brien replied for O'Tooles. Teeling and O'Brien scored for their respective sides, and Nolan gave Parnells a 5-2 lead; but O'Tooles put in a great finish. Kavanagh's accuracy was the feature of their play, and he got three points to equalise.

WESTMEATH JUNIORS BEAT LONGFORD.

At Longford yesterday, in the Leinster Championships, Westmeath beat Longford by 4 goals 3 points to 2 goals 2 points in the junior game, and the minor event ended in a draw of 2 points each.

Westmeath started strongly in the junior game, and had 4 goals inside nine minutes, Bracken, Lucy and Tyrell (2) scoring, in reply to which Sheridan (goal) and D. Daly (point) scored for Longford. In the second half Sheridan goaled again for Longford, and W. Daly had a point; while Gavin, Bracken and Lucy sent over points for Westmeath.

In the minor game Hoskins (2) scored for Westmeath, and Hannafy and White for Longford.

WEXFORD AND CARLOW SHARE HONOURS.

At Carlow yesterday, in the Leinster Junior Championships, Wexford and Carlow shared the honours. The hurling match was won rather easily by Wexford by 6 goals 2 points to 1 goal 2 points; but at football Carlow were superior, and won by 4 goals 3 points to 2 goals 4 points.

CONNAUGHT CHAMPIONS HELD.

GALWAY .... 1-5 MAYO 2-2

Mayo, the Connaught football champions, who are to tour America in a few weeks time, drew with Galway in a well-contested game played at Parkmore, Tuam, yesterday. Mayo were short six of their usual county players, and for the greater part of the time Galway played superior football, and it was only within the last few minutes Mayo drew level by getting a goal. Playing against a biting north breeze in the first half, Mayo failed to score, while Galway got a goal and four points. Galway went further ahead with another point scored shortly after resuming, but Mayo, settling down, put Galway on the defensive, and got a goal and two points, and after strenuous play drew level with a goal scored in a mêlée at the Galway goal.

ARMY METRO BEATEN IN LIMERICK.

Y. IRELANDS...... 3-3 ARMY METRO...... 2-3

At Limerick yesterday, Young Irelands, Limerick, outclassed Army Metro in brilliant fashion. In the opening stages the visitors dominated the play, and finished the first half with a lead of two goals, but in the second half Young Irelands put on three goals in quick succession.

MUNSTER COUNCIL CHAIRMAN RESIGNS.

Mr. Sean McCarthy, the recently-elected president of the G.A.A., has resigned his position as chairman of the Munster Council, and it was decided at a meeting at Limerick on Saturday to elect his successor on April 30. Nominations will be received on or before April 18th, and the date for withdrawals is April 22nd.

TABLE TENNIS.

ENGLAND DEFEAT FREE STATE.

PROMISING FORM BY HOME PLAYERS.

ENGLAND .... 9 IRELAND 2

The greater aggression of the English team was the principal factor in their 9-2 win over the Irish Free State at the Catholic Club on Saturday night. The home side put up an excellent display, for they were meeting some of the most accomplished players in England; but, while their defence and placing were good, they could not bring off the outright winners at critical moments that distinguished the play of the visitors. All the Men's Singles went to England, and if the Free State could not even take a game they made their opponents work hard to win. Drum, the Irish Number One, ran Jones to two 'vantage games by his wonderful powers of retrieving, but his lack of winning shots made his victory always appear improbable. Kemp, the most advanced of the Irish players, just lacked sufficient steadiness to beat a clever left-hander in S. Profitt.

The Irish women did better, Miss Pemberton proving too steady for Miss Bartholomew, who never seemed to find her touch; while Miss Healy lost after appearing certain to win comfortably. She led by a game and 20-16, but, wanting only one point for victory, her accustomed steadiness deserted her, and she lost the next six points and also the third game. Miss Pollett was rather fortunate, but one had to admire the way that she never departed from her aggressive style of play.

Our other success was gained in the Mixed Doubles by a well-balanced pair in Kemp and Miss Pemberton, but here again Miss Bartholomew's unsteadiness contributed most to her side's defeat. The other doubles matches were touch-and-go, and the Free State players are almost the equals of the English at this phase of the game. It was just that extra pace on their smashes that brought the visitors through successfully. Results:—

Men's Singles—H. C. Cooke (England) beat W. T. Spencer—21-12, 21-16; R. D. Jones (England) beat J. Drum—23-21, 22-20; S. Profitt (England) beat C. Kemp—21-15, 21-19; D. Foulis (England) beat H. MacDougald—21-13, 21-15.

Women's Singles—Miss Pollett (England) beat Miss Healy—13-21, 22-20, 21-12; Miss Bartholomew (England) lost to Miss Pemberton—20-22, 15-21.

Men's Doubles—Jones and Profitt (England) beat Spencer and MacDougald—19-21, 21-15, 21-13; Cooke and Foulis (England) beat Drum and Kemp—21-17, 21-19.

Mixed Doubles—S. Profitt and Miss Pollett (England) beat J. Drum and Miss Healy—21-17, 21-18; D. Foulis and Miss Bartholomew (England) lost to C. Kemp and Miss Pemberton—12-21, 21-7, 18-21.

Women's Doubles—Misses Pollett and Bartholomew (England) beat Misses Healy and Pemberton—21-17, 10-21, 21-18.

THREE CUPS FOR ULSTER.

CLIFTONVILLE DEFEAT TRINITY IN THE SENIOR FINAL.

Ulster teams had a successful time in Dublin on Saturday, and three cups were captured for the North. Cliftonville defeated Dublin University in the final of the men's Irish Senior Cup by four goals to one; Portrush secured the men's Junior Cup at the expense of Portrane, and Ards won the women's Senior Cup when they beat Cork by four goals to two. Cliftonville's victory was rather easily gained, but Portrush and Portrane had to play two periods of extra time before their match was decided, while in the case of the women's match, it was only in the second half that Ards established their superiority, Cork having scored the only goal of the first half. The latter team was handicapped by one of their forwards having to retire during the second period.

M'DONOGH IN FORM FOR CLIFTONVILLE.

CLIFTONVILLE ...... 4 DUBLIN UNIV. 1

THERE was not much excitement at the Irish Senior Cup final at Londonbridge road on Saturday, as early in the game it was seen that Trinity were not equal to extending the Northern visitors. It may have been due to McVeagh's absence that the Dublin University forwards were not seen to their usual advantage, but early in the game the Cliftonville defenders got the whip hand, Dick and Edwards proving more than a match for them. On the other hand, the visiting attack, cleverly fed by an experienced half-back line, were often causing the Trinity backs a good deal of concern, their sharp, well placed passes leading to an overworked defence making mistakes.

A short corner to Cliftonville gave McDonogh the chance to prove that he has lost none of his old-time skill in marksmanship, a fast, rising shot giving Kenay no chance. A rapid passing movement found the Trinity backs out of position, and Simms, trapping a fast centre from Wilson, had little difficulty in adding a goal. McDonogh, who was always a dangerous raider, evaded a series of tackles to work through and give Cliftonville a clear three-goal lead at the interval.

Although facing a certain defeat, Trinity played up strongly on resuming, and Darley had a couple of chances from centres by Mooney, but failed to gather the passes. A tricky, swerving run by McDonogh led up to his adding a further score with a very fine drive, and with this overwhelming lead Cliftonville were content. A last minute dash enabled Lee to reduce the lead, but Cliftonville were not all out at the finish.

McIlveen, the winners' goalkeeper, was not much tested, but brought off several timely clearances. Dick was a very clever defender. Moore was the best of the middle line and made some fine openings, while McDonogh was outstanding at forward. Kenay, in the Trinity goal, saved his side from a much bigger defeat, and Keatinge was the better full. The half line were inclined to hold on, and a number of their passes were intercepted. Mooney and Lee were the best of a not over-clever attack.

Dublin University—G. T. Kenay; R. P. Griffith, R. H. Keatinge; R. J. Hodgins, C. G. Gregory, T. G. Darley; O. V. Mooney, H. D. Sarratt, F. J. Darley, W. G. Lee, H. C. Sloan.

Cliftonville—J. McIlveen; W. M. Dick, J. Edwards; G. W. Gailey, R. W. Moore, J. McFadden; H. Burrowes, R. Simms, J. B. Kelly, W. J. McDonogh, J. K. Wilson.

Umpires—Messrs. A. G. Fitt and J. B. McNab (Munster).

PORTRUSH STAY BETTER THAN PORTRANE.

PORTRUSH .... 3 PORTRANE 2

The Donabate club are proverbially an unfortunate side in cup matches. They have had several times got to the last stage without being able to wind up with a success. On Saturday, having secured an early lead their goalkeeper gave away a penalty bully, which the Northerners converted. At full-time the scores were level, and an extra twenty minutes failing to bring about a change, a further period of extra time brought two goals to Portrush and one to Portrane.

The pitch was rather slippery, and the play somewhat suffered, but it lost nothing in excitement and interest, and was easily the best contested game that has been seen in Junior circles for a number of years. Portrush lasted out the prolonged game better, and deserved their success. Gilfinnan (2) and Liken scored for Portrush, and Kineally got both scores for Portrane.

Portrush—A. Shaw; H. Douglas, T. Kelly; J. McNally, J. Drain, J. Hayes; E. Magee, S. R. Sheane, J. Gilfinnan, J. Liken, J. Minaghan.

Portrane—T. Brown; J. Brady, J. Terret; G. Terret, P. Neville, W. Donnelly; A. Griffin, B. Blake, J. Kineally, A. Byrne, R. Healy.

Umpires—Messrs. D. J. Colter and H. Bollard.

EASY FOR NAAS.

NAAS .... 6 DALKEY 3

It was rather unfortunate for Dalkey that they could only field nine men against Naas at Oldtown on Saturday, owing to the fact that one of their cars broke down on the way to the ground. Throughout they played with only three forwards, and, therefore, it was not surprising that Naas won very easily.

Early in the first half J. A. Purcell opened the scoring, and Fitzpatrick added two more before Phillipson replied for Dalkey with a good goal. Naas eased off to some extent in the concluding peiod, but nevertheless J. A. Purcell completed a "hat trick." Phillipson and Cummins scored Dalkey's second half goals.

Naas—P. Leonard; J. J. Purcell, C. Tyndall; D. J. O'Rourke, J. D'Arcy, Jack Tyndall; J. M. Wheeler, A. Fitzpatrick, J. A. Purcell, T. McCormack, Joe Tyndall.

VITAL POINTS FOR MONKSTOWN.

MONKSTOWN...... 2 PEMBROKE WAN.... 1

Neither team was at full strength for the important League match at Serpentine avenue yesterday, between Pembroke Wanderers and Monkstown, and, the latter, by winning 2-1, kept themselves at the head of the League table. Monkstown had the better scoring chances, but Wanderers had rather more of the play, and, until the last fifteen minutes, looked like winning. They led by a goal scored by Riley at half-time, and held their lead until midway through the second half. Then Legge equalised from a penalty corner, and, less than five minutes from the end, worked through, to get the winning goal with a rather soft push shot.

The difference between the sides really lay at full-back, Carroll and Ormsby being a much sounder pair than Spence and O'Sullivan. E. Gray gave a brilliant display at centre-half for Monkstown, and Allen was also good at right-half. Wanderers had the better balanced attack, but they were slow in the circle. J. Gray played well at inside left for Monkstown, and Legge got through a lot of work at inside right. Teams:—

Monkstown—J. S. Prouse; A. B. Carroll, A. J. Ormsby; D. Allen, E. Gray, P. D. McWeeney; F. O'Kelly, H. G. Legg, E. Dormer, J. Gray, S. Waddell.

Pembroke Wanderers—N. McNeill; E. Spence, O. O'Sullivan; S. Doyle, C. J. Little, L. McMullan; W. Aylward, R. P. Marten, J. D. O'Reilly, E. Riley, P. Hunter.

RAILWAY'S FIRST HALF SCORES.

RAILWAY UNION... 5 AVOCA SCHOOL...... 2

At Park avenue on Saturday, Avoca School were again forced to concede full points to Railway Union in a game in which the hockey reached a high standard.

The early exchanges gave promise of a very close game; for after V. Sully opened the scoring Fry almost at once got the equaliser. Before the interval, however, Railway Union had got four more, V. Sully (2), Knight and C. Sully scoring, but one shot Scott should have saved. Sound defensive work by both sides was the feature of the second period. Three times MacDonagh had shots saved, and it was only in the last minute that Fry put in a shot just under the cross-bar.

Railway Union—W. C. Leopold; J. H. Doran, M. C. O'Donoghue; J.J. Corscadden, W. Chiddick (capt.), H. W. Sally; T. C. Browner, C. Sully, V. G. Sully, H. Knight, W. E. Hennessy.

Avoca School—A. D. Scott; F. C. O'Connor, J. L. Morris; D. J. Coulson, R. F. Browne, L. S. Phillips; W. Kelly, D. M. Stewart, J. A. MacDonagh, N. E. Andrews, W. Fry.

Umpires—L. Morrison and M. McClelland.

CORK LOSE THE LEAD IN WOMEN'S FINAL.

ARDS .... 4 CORK 2

THE final of the Women's All-Ireland Cup, played at Claremont road on Saturday, resulted in a good win for Ards, who defeated Cork after a very keenly contested match by four goals to two. Cork opened the scoring when, after pressure by Ards, Miss Daly cleared up field, and Miss Lyons netted from close in. Ards again attacked, and Miss Strahan made a fine attempt to equalise, but Mrs. Law stopped the shot. Crossing over a goal behind Ards played up splendidly, and a fine forward rush ended with a great score, Miss Neally taking a splendid cross pass from Miss McLean to send in from almost the back line. Miss Strahan gave her side the lead after an individual run, and the same player from a pass by Miss F. Moffett sent across to Miss Marshall to net. Cork, although without Miss Cahill, who was forced to retire, attacked again and Miss McSweeney scored, but Miss McLean got another for Ards just on time.

Ards—Misses Mayne; McGimpsey, Cooke; O. Moffett, Gordon, F. Moffett; McLean, Matson, Strahan, Marshall, Neally.

Cork—Mrs. Law; Misses Daly, Beamish; Galvin, Kearney, O'Mahony; Murphy, Cahill, McSweeney, Lyons, Barry.

Umpires—Mrs. Gossett (Leinster) and Miss McCulloch (Ulster).

After the match Miss O'Flaherty presented the All-Ireland Cup to the captain of Ards, Miss O. Moffett.

OPTIMISTS SECURE THE LEAGUE CUP.

OPTIMISTS ... ... 3 DUBLIN UNIV. ... 2

It went to two periods of extra time before a decision was arrived at in the Senior League Cup final between Optimists and Dublin University at Claremont road. Optimists maintained their unbeaten League record, winning by the odd goal in five.

The feature was the defence on both sides. It was almost on the interval before Miss Rose scored for Optimists, and it was well on in the second half when Miss French equalised. In the first period of extra time Miss McKay scored for Trinity, and this was soon followed by a score from Miss Weston. In the closing minutes Miss Weston got through again to score for Optimists.

SCOTLAND'S SURPRISE WIN.

SCOTLAND .... 1 WALES 0

Scotland, most unexpectedly, beat Wales by a goal to nil in the last international of the season at Cardiff on Saturday. Wales were faster in attack, but their shooting was very poor, while the Scottish defence was excellent. The visiting forwards were little better, and the only goal was scored by Whitelaw, following a penalty corner early in the second half.
